FDR AND CHURCHILL PART TO CARRY OUT MASTER WAR PLAN

Nazi Regiment Surrenders at Stalingrad

Reds Crushing Trapped Enemy

Wipe Out Part of Second Big Unit In 12,000 Left of Siege Army, Take 28,000 German Prisoners.

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(UP)—Soviet artillery blasted the remnants of the encircled German forces west of Stalingrad from two sides today while the Russian 62nd army moved rapidly toward ousting the last enemy troops from within the city.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—United States heavy bombers, Flying Fortresses and Liberators, attacked naval installations in Germany today, it was authoritatively announced. It was the United States Army Force's first attack on the German homeland.

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—The entire German 534th Infantry regiment surrendered today and part of the 609th including staff officers was wiped out as Russian troops mercilessly attacked the 12,000 ragged, starving Axis troops remaining on the Stalingrad front from 22 divisions totaling 220,000 men.

On the Voronezh front, where innumerable German and other Axis forces have been encircled, group after group laid down their arms, the noon communique reported, and within a few hours 1,463 prisoners had been rounded up and sent to the rear.

The fate of Gen. Friedrich von Paulus, German commander in chief on the Stalingrad front, and of the many high officers of his staff remained a mystery. There was no indication whether he had escaped by plane or elected to remain with his men, who had resisted to the last after Adolf Hitler had threatened reprisals against their families if they surrendered.

The obituary notice for the trapped remnants at Stalingrad had

QUIET: Resistance Ends After Nazis Open Fire In Marseilles

LONDON—German machine gunners and sharpshooters have broken the last French resistance in the Old Harbor district of Marseilles, reports from the frontier of France indicated today.

The harbor district of the picturesque Mediterranean seaport had been quiet for 12 hours, according to word filtering into Switzerland. Much of the area lay in smoldering ruins from fires started by German field guns while the Nazis, including ruthless SS troopers, were driving defiant men and women from their homes in a sweeping evacuation order.

Unconfirmed reports reaching London said that at least 300 persons had been killed and that dozens had died of exposure while plodding the 70 miles or more to the concentration camp at Frejus. Seventeen suicides were reported among those determined not to leave the district.

In Switzerland, it was understood that both Marseilles and Lyons, French textile manufacturing center, were under heavy German occupation. Observers thought that the Germans might evacuate the entire French Mediterranean coast and establish heavy fortifications against any possible Allied invasion move.

Other reports suggested that all departments of France west of the Rhone river had been occupied by the Germans while those east of the Rhone had been taken over by Italians.

Switzerland reported that 450 persons were arrested at Marseilles yesterday and that many were held as hostages.

Operating under a Vichy declaration of martial law, the Germans opened with their field guns on the old harbor at noon yesterday.

HAVOC: Allies Hit Japs From Air Over Burma, South Pacific

(By Associated Press)

Allied warplanes were credited today with inflicting new havoc on Japan's invasion armies in Burma and the South Seas, even as Prime Minister John Curtin of Australia appealed for greater strength in the southwest Pacific "to avenge the men of Corregidor."

Curtin declared: "Time is fighting on the side of Japan. Time is fighting against the United States. The southwest Pacific area is too crucial to be left to a force of caretakers."

Simultaneously, dispatches from the New Guinea battlefront quoted Lieut. Gen. Robert Eichelberger, commander of American forces in the victorious Papuan campaign, as declaring the Allied triumph in that sector was "a slap in the face for the Jap" and the first pushing-around of this war for the Japanese.

Observers expected that with the end of the Papuan campaign, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's American and Australian forces would next turn their attention

Hari-kiri, In Three Scenes

Japs are still following their old self-elimination custom of hara-kiri and these photos show the demise of one who was trapped by the Aussies at Capt Enaidaire, Papua, New Guinea. Four Japs waded into the sea when Australian infantry overran their position and refused to surrender. Three were shot, but the fourth, top photo, took care of himself as an Aussie covered him with a rifle. He tapped a hand grenade on his head, center, and a few seconds later, bottom, he had vanished, blown to bits.

FLYNN GIVEN COMMITTEE OK BY 13-10 VOTE

Three Democrats Join With Republicans In Opposing Roosevelt Nomination.

SENATE ACTION DUE

Ballot Expected Next Week After Recommendation By Foreign Relations Unit.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The senate foreign relations committee approved today President Roosevelt's nomination of Edward J. Flynn, former national Democratic chairman, to be minister to Australia and the president's personal representative in the southwest Pacific.

The vote was 13 to 10.

Three Democrats — Senators George (D., G.), Van Nuys (D., Ind.) and Gillette (D., Iowa)— joined with the seven Republican members of the committee in voting against confirmation.

Committee endorsement sent the nomination to the senate for consideration next week. The senate's decision on the appointment, which provoked Republican charges that Flynn was unfit for the diplomatic post, was in doubt. There now are 38 Republicans in the senate and they are expected to vote almost solidly against confirmation.

As evidence of some Democratic opposition to the selection of the 51-year-old Flynn, long time personal and political friend of Mr. Roosevelt, to the important Australian post, Van Nuys said he cast his "no" vote as a "protest against this growing practice of dumping controversial nominations in the lap of the senate."

Aligned in opposition were Republicans Johnson (Calif.), Capper (Kas.), Vandenberg (Mich.), White (Me.), Shipstead (Minn.), Nye (N. D.) and Davis (Penn.).

Senator LaFollette (Prog., Wis.) joined these Democrats in recommending confirmation: Chairman Connally (Tex.), Wagner (N. Y.), Thomas (Utah), Murray (Mont.), Pepper (Fla.), Green (R. I.), Barkley (Ky.) Reynolds (N. C.), Guffey (Penn.), Clark (Mo.), Glass (Va.) and Tunnell (Del.)

Glass and Johnson, who are out of the city, voted by proxy.

PARLEYS ON

Conferences Open In Ashland Rubber Plant Strike.

ASHLAND — Conferences were in progress today between officials of United Rubber Workers Local 165 and the Faultless Rubber company seeking a solution of the strike which started yesterday morning, throwing 450 war workers out of employment.

Picketing continued today, only supervisors, office workers, maintenance men and government employes entering the plant. Edward L. Wertz, president of the local, said that he advised against the walkout of about 40 press room employes Monday night even "after they had been told by a foreman that their pay rate would be 47½ cents an hour, a reduction of 82½ cents an hour from the scale guaranteed them a week ago."

Ready to Put World Strategy In Execution

Chiefs Determine to Press Initiative In Every Theater of Operations as De Gaulle, Giraud Confer on Fuller Use of French Forces.

(By Associated Press)

CASABLANCA, French Morocco—A master war plan for 1943 aimed at forcing the unconditional surrender of Germany, Japan and Italy, has been mapped in a historic 10-day conference among President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and a score of top-flight military and supply leaders, and today the Allied heads had separated to put their global strategy "into active and concerted execution."

President Roosevelt, breaking more traditions, flew 5,000 miles for the meeting that began Jan. 14 and ended last Sunday with a press conference on the sunny lawn of a villa in Casablanca's outskirts near the Atlantic breakers through which American troops stormed ashore last November.

Churchill also flew to the rendezvous which found Gen. Charles De Gaulle, Fighting French leader, and Gen. Henri Giraud, French North African high commissioner, getting together for negotiations to put a French army, navy, and air force in the field for powerful blows against the Axis.

Working day and night, the president and prime minister were attended by virtually the entire war staffs of both nations, including all the service heads, and they reached "complete agreement" on their objectives, it was announced.

Premier Joseph Stalin of Russia and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek of China were kept advised of the progress and results of the conference which outwitted Nazi spies based in adjacent Spanish Morocco.

The presence of such a galaxy of American and British leaders, both strategists and field commanders, indicated not only European invasion courses had been charted, but field commanders had been decided upon for impending operations. Those who will command and where they will strike probably will remain military secrets for some time.

President Roosevelt took time out from the deliberations to award decorations to U. S. troops, ride a jeep to review troops in

Seek to Minimize Roosevelt, Churchill Meeting But News Remains Gloomy.

(By International News Service)

LONDON — A gloomier atmosphere confronted the German people today as German propagandists hinted in radio addresses and in the press that further bad news could be expected from Russia while the whole Allied war effort would be intensified.

The Nazis on the other hand sought to minimize the historic Casablanca conference among Allied leaders which presages a large-scale offensive against the continent of Europe. One German broadcast beamed to North America branded the meeting between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill a "Hollywood powwow."

From Zurich it was reported that the German public has been painfully surprised by the sudden change in tone of their propaganda spokesmen and reich newspapers are taking the greatest pains to try to cheer the public. The press is attempting to bolster the populace by urging them to retain

Pennsylvania to Spend Million on Crestline Yards

The Pennsylvania railroad will make improvements to its main line from Crestline westward to Chicago and to its Crestline yards totaling nearly $2,500,000, the International News Service said today in a dispatch from Chicago. Nearly $1,000,000 of that amount will be spent in Crestline.

Already under way, the new construction will provide additional yard trackage and main line sidings, water, coaling and other supporting facilities to speedy handling of wartime freight and passenger traffic, said J. M. Symes a company vice president.

Five eastward and five westward relay tracks—each of 150-car capacity, will be constructed at Crestline, Symes said. These improvements, he added, together with additional trackage in the present eastward and westward yards, car repair facilities, inspection pits and auxiliary coaling facilities will cost approximately $1,000,000.

Symes said other plans in the program include new main line sidings or extending present siding facilities at Bucyrus, Riley and Dola, Ohio. Work on all phases of the project is being rushed to completion, Symes asserted. No definite date for finishing the program has been set.

Heavy Machinery Brought to Shelby Depot Site.

SHELBY — Heavy construction equipment of the J. F. O'Connor company began arriving today on the site of the Army Air Force Supply depot near here.

Huge carryalls, bulldozers, ditchers and scrapers are on the scene which is rapidly converting from a peaceful winter farmland panorama into a bustling war project.

Captain Glenn E. Shaw, senior officer of the U. S. Engineers corps staff directing operations, said principal immediate work deals with drainage of the area to facilitate construction of warehouses and other buildings.

Road building machinery is arriving, together with truck trains carrying equipment. A number of Civil Aeronautics administration trucks arrived this morning from a night's layover in Mansfield.

By MME. QUI VIVE

Family photograph albums and collections of snap shots offer a history of fashions in feminine faces. Women do change their faces. Some looked older at thirty than they do now at fifty.

Take the picture of a great-grandmother at the age of 18 when she was a bride. Her straight hair is parted in the middle, drawn in severe loops over her ears. She wears a plain little bonnet and her dress has no more fit to it than a flour sack. She carries an expression of serious responsibility, though she's little more than a child.

In later years she acquires a grim look as befitted the time when gaiety was not quite respectable. Everything that made one happy and light-hearted was wicked.

Now for grandma, her daughter. At the age of 18 she crimped her hair every day on a curling iron, wore wasp-waisted corsets, and street dresses that trailed on the sidewalk. A few years later she was in a straight front corset, bore a huge pompadour upholstered with factory hair and topped with a Merry Widow hat as big as a tire. She had bushy eyebrows. Paint had never touched her fair countenance.

Then came the period of waved locks covering half the cheeks. Foreheads were not in evidence. Rouge, lipstick, tweezed and tortured eyebrows started up business at the end of World War I. The boys came back from France, scarcely recognized their best girls. Hair was wadded atop the head in scrolls, coils and buns and what was known as a "dip" curtained the forehead.

There followed the tight marcel wave that looked pretty much like corrugated paper or the scrubbing side of a washboard. The first permanents appeared, making the head look as if it were capped with a frizzy floor mop. About that time the bob startled the world. The bowl cut came first and was it ugly! We had the page boy much later, a big improvement. We all remember the shingle, the wind blown, the pineapple curl.

Now there is a frantic endeavor to up the hair and get back to where we were along about 1918.

Consider the feminine mouth. The ideal used to be the little rosebud pattern of the Gish girls. A famous lady of the screen, who happened to have a large mouth started to accentuate it, and all the duckies followed suit. Some had square mouths, or almost square. The proper make-up caper at the present time is to streamline the lips.

Shaving off the eyebrows and using a crayon, or just going bald-faced, was one of the silliest of all beauty whimsies.

Fads are quieting down, as befits the period. The fashion now is to be natural looking.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Stage an accident to Mary?" I repeated in astonishment, and my father laughed indulgently.

"Don't look so horrified!" he said. "It won't be a real accident, and you won't have to do it without Mary's knowledge. She will be aiding and abetting you every step of the way.

"Lean back in your chair and relax," he went on, "while I explain what I mean."

I obeyed him, and for a few seconds he did not speak.

"In the first place," he resumed, "I need to keep Redfield in his position until this thing has been cleared up. I want him under my eyes, and I do not want him disturbed by worries over his job.

"You see, while Milner and the rest of them value their positions only because they give opportunities for espionage, Redfield puts his position as a Veritzen leading man above anything else. If he should lose it he would go berserk and would be useless not only to the traitors he is aiding, but, what is infinitely more important, he would be useless to me. Mary, on the other hand, is no longer important to me as an aid in getting a line on Redfield."

I suppose my face reflected my astonishment, for he suddenly smiled.

"I know your're thinking," he said, "that I already have asked Mary to go out with Redfield, well-chaperoned of course, a few more times, but that was only so that his suspicions shall not be aroused, and for no other reason; not to try to get any information out of him. She finished that part of her task superbly last night, when she discovered the hiding place of that document and enable us to get it back, and to substitute another, to deceive the traitors who are using Steve as their messenger.

"But," he said slowly, "if Steve's suspicions can be lulled by Mary suddenly being unable either to go anywhere with him or to appear in her role, then my end will be attained and so will Philip Veritzen's, for then Mary will never have to appear with Redfield again. And when my plan comes to a climax, Redfield will be removed not only from his role, but from Mary's life as well. He will have no chance for annoying her from the place where he will spend the next few years.

"The best thing of all," he went on, "is that Philip Veritzen, who never rescinds a decision, will thus be able to carry his point."

He rose and put his hand on my shoulder.

"I must go over to see Veritzen as soon as that make-up man gets here," he said, "and while I am gone I want you to put your wits to work planning a plausible accident or illness for Mary. You are so ingenious I am sure you will be able to think up something very convincing."

"Convincing to whom?" I asked. "How many people are going to know that the accident or illness is not genuine?"

"Only those who really have to know," he answered. "You and I, of course, Philip Veritzen and Dr. Twitchell, who will be called to attend her, and who knows how to make things convincing. I don't see why anybody else should have to know, do you?"

I looked at him in astonishment. How in the world could we keep knowledge that any accident to Mary, or her illness, was staged instead of real, from her husband or from Olga and Olina?

But the sound of the knocker prevented me from answering my father's question.

"That must be the make-up man," he said. "You won't need to answer my question now, but try to have something ready for me when I get back."

Your Federal Income Tax

NO. 21: INCOME FROM RENTS AND ROYALTIES

Many taxpayers derive income from rents and royalties. Such income is shown in item 6 of the return Form 1040. Only the net income—or loss—is shown in item 6; that is, the difference between the total amount received in revenue from the property less the total amount of the ordinary and necessary expenses incurred. An explanation of income, chargeable expenses, and the kind of property, must be shown in Schedule B of the return.

The "kind of property" might be indicated as a farm, dwelling, store building, or the like. The chargeable expenses are shown under three headings, as (a) depreciation allowable, (b) repairs, and (c) other expenses. Where depreciation is claimed, a further explanation is required in Schedule F (Explanation of Deduction for Depreciation Claims). Repairs and other expenses must also be explained and itemized.

A distinction must be made between expenditures for maintenance and repairs and expenditures for replacements, improvements, and alterations. Replacement expense to the extent that the replacements arrest deterioration and appreciably prolong the life of the property, is not chargeable against rental income for the year, but is chargeable to capital or the depreciation reserve. Only the cost of incidental repairs which neither materially add to the value of the property nor appreciably prolong its life, but serve to keep it in an ordinary efficient operating condition, may be deducted as repair expense in Schedule B.

The distinction between what is an improvement and an alteration and what is a repair, is not always clear, and has been the subject of many rulings and decisions. The cost of painting the outside of a home used for business purposes (rental) and the cost of painting and papering the inside, for instance, are regarded as repairs, deductible as expense in Schedule B. The replacement of a roof or a change in the heating plant, plumbing system, or other major alteration, is regarded as in the nature of a capital expenditure and is not deductible as repair expense in Schedule B.

Among "other expenses" deductible in Schedule B are such items as the cost of janitor service, water service, fuel, fire insurance, and the like, as well as taxes and interest expense. If taxes and interest are deducted as "other expenses," they may not be deducted under the separate items of taxes and interest in the return.

Where a dwelling is partly rented and partly occupied by the taxpayer, only those expenses chargeable to the rented portion are deductible. In the case of a two-family dwelling, for instance, one-half of which is occupied by the owner, ordinarily one-half of the depreciation allowable, repairs and other expenses, would be deductible from the rent received.

Royalties are, in general, the earnings from copyrights, patents, good will, trade marks, formulas, and the like, as well as from mineral properties. In the case of royalties from mineral properties the statute provides for certain allowable depletion expense, depending upon the nature of the property and other factors, and the amounts deducted may not exceed the statutory limitations.

Child Should Be Protected From Fright

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

The mother of the young child, with no help, is tempted to run a short errand after he has gone to sleep for his nap. Some young couples will even venture to go out for an evening, leaving the sleeping youngster all alone in the house.

Don't leave a child alone in the house until he is old enough to be comfortable and self-reliant while awake before you leave, knowing that you are going. When you leave a child over 12 or 14 with a younger child, be sure this older child is dependable. Work out with him a definite plan in case of emergency—what to do and where to telephone in case of fire or if a doctor is needed. Do likewise with any adult you leave in charge of the young child. Have such telephone numbers printed boldly and posted near the telephone.

A Mother's Letter.

"Dear Dr. Myers:—Thank you for your letter and your bulletin on 'Stuttering.' I am sure you will be glad to know that Billy's stuttering has now practically disappeared.

"Until Billy was 18 months old he was always put to bed at regular hours, left alone with lights out and door closed. Then it was necessary for us to move some distance and to spend a few nights in a tourist cabin. After Billy was put to bed as usual and was, as we thought, asleep, we went to the restaurant a few doors away for dinner.

"The second evening while we were gone, he awakened and apparently was terribly frightened when he found himself alone and we did not answer his cries. From then on he has screamed in fright when we put him to bed and attempted to leave him.

"For a time we stayed near and in every way tried to make him feel safe again. We were having some degree of success and I feel sure we might have overcome the difficulty, but for our temporary residences, each for only a few weeks, before we had a permanent one.

"As a last resort we remained with him until he went to sleep, with the inevitable result that we must now lie down in the same room with him until he goes to sleep both at bedtime and nap time."

Doctor's Answer.

Usually I advise parents to let the child so spoiled cry it out and learn to stay alone, but in this case, considering the earlier fears and uncertainties this child experienced, I advised that for some months, at least, they go on staying with him.

I did suggest that beginning during the nap time, the mother might gradually wean him away from her if she would make herself busy in another room, going in and out softly now and then as if getting some needed article, letting him feel sure all the while she was near; that, moreover, he should spend more time during the day with some child or person other than a parent.

In my letter to this mother who thoughtfully enclosed a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it, I enclosed a selected list of books and pamphlets which discuss the common problems nearly every parent must face.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. "Do you know any one who could instruct me to be more thrifty?" a mother writes.

A. Many banks have certain experts who are glad to show a mother or father how to make a family budget and spend the family income wisely. Some wives would be wise to sit down with the husband and plan a budget.

"The Authority on Authorities"

ODD-LOOKING CONTRACTS

If you employ artificial conventions for opening the bidding, such as the Vanderbilt club or the forcing 2-Club bid, you must expect to get in an occasional contract which seems very peculiar. You may have only a singleton trump, or perhaps none at all while the dummy has a great string of them. In those cases, you must play as if you were a fly walking upside down on the ceiling, treating the dummy as the declarer's hand and your own as the dummy.

	♠ K Q J 10 8 ♥ 10 8 6 ♦ A 3 2 ♣ K 5
♠ A 9 6 4 ♥ A K J 5 ♦ 2 ♣ Q 10 9 ♣ 7	N W E S	♠ 3 ♥ Q 4 ♦ K ♣ A Q J 10 9 6 4 3 2
	♠ 7 5 2 ♥ 9 7 3 ♦ J 8 7 6 5 4 ♣ 8

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♣	1 ♠	6 ♣

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

West would not dare monkey with that bid by his partner. He was using the version of the Vanderbilt system in which an opening bid of 1-Club was artificial betokening possession of at least three "top tricks"—either an ace-king and an ace or else three aces. Knowing his partner was familiar with the system, he could be sure East was not counting on him for any clubs at all. So he passed and played the hand at a small slam with only a singleton of trumps in his own hand.

North led the spade K, as most any body would, and as a consequence West took all of the tricks. After winning with the A, he got rid of clubs and then threw off his losers in spades and diamonds on the dummy's hearts. Of course, if North leads the diamond A, only a small slam will be made.

Where there was natural bidding, East became the declarer at 6-Clubs, which was at every other table of the duplicate in which this deal arose. At all of those tables, South led a diamond, and the A held the declarer to small slam.

Tomorrow's Problem.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, January 28.

Under the spur of initiative, well-directed energy of a practical and constructive sort, and insight, important interests should receive much impetus on this day. But principle and prudence, rather than expediency or irregularity of motive and methods, should be adhered to if proper ends are to be attained.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy an exceptionally enterprising and productive year, if they will be careful to adhere to strict rules and regulations of business procedure and not be tempted by ways of expedience. With sound purpose and diligence, important enterprises may be carried to success. Social, sentimental, and all round gratifications and pleasures may be able to participate in reaction to progress and initiative.

Chocolate Replaces Coffee

By BETSY NEWMAN

If your coffee ration won't fit your usual needs or you have to do without your morning coffee, there are other hot drinks to serve for breakfast, such as cocoa, chocolate, tea, hot milk, chocolate milk shake, egg nog made with warm milk. All but tea are more nourishing than coffee.

Today's Menu.

Breakfast.

Fruit Juice
Cereal With Top Milk
Creamed Eggs over Toast
Hot Beverage
Cocoa.

1 Tbsp. sugar
1 Tbsp. cocoa
½ cup cold water
2 cups milk
Few grains salt
¼ tsp. vanilla

Measure sugar and cocoa into a saucepan. A double boiler is good for making cocoa, as it relieves worry about burning, and the hot water in the lower part keeps the cocoa hot if it has to stand awhile. Mix together and add cold water. You may use less sugar than the tablespoonful if you like. Put in a teaspoonful and taste to see how much more you need. Heat slowly to boiling point and boil 3 minutes, no longer; add milk and heat but do not boil; add salt and vanilla, whisk vigorously with a whisk or a rotary beater, and serve piping hot. Serves 3.

Hot Chocolate.

Use above recipe but substitute 1 ounce bitter chocolate in place of cocoa. Set in warm place or over hot water to melt, stir in sugar and have water boiling. Boil three minutes, add milk and proceed as in making cocoa. Serves 3.

Chocolate Syrup (for Milk Shake)

2 or 3 oz. bitter chocolate or
½ to ⅔ cup cocoa
¼ tsp. salt
½ to ⅔ cup sugar
1¼ cup water.

Melt chocolate over hot water, or mix cocoa and sugar, add water, heat to boiling and boil 3 minutes; add salt. Turn into jar and seal when cold, and keep in refrigerator to be used as needed. Add 2 tablespoons of the syrup to 1 glass hot milk, add few drops of vanilla and serve. Serves 1.

Egg-Nog.

1 egg
2 tsp. sugar
Flavoring
Few grains salt
⅔ cup milk

Beat egg, add sugar and salt, beating them in; add warm milk, whisking it in, then add flavoring a little vanilla or a few gratings of nutmeg, and serve.

THE BOY FROM MAINE

CHAPTER XIII

She could even smile a little now. She said softly, murmurously, with her lips against his cheek, "And you still want to marry me? You haven't changed your mind?"

"Why am I here?"

* * *

That was their real reunion in audible to anyone. Since it was not invisible to passers-by it could not last. 'This is too dangerous," Rosalie said now, and meant it this time. She drew away and sat up straight, and Bailey leaned to kiss her quickly once again, and then he reached out for the switch and turned it on, and kicked the starter. He looked to see the car ahead of him, the one behind, and then he looked at Rosalie.

"You have the key," he said.

Looking at him, asking him mutely for his understanding. Rosalie said, "No. I didn't bring it. Not—this time."

This was their discussion of where they go and it sufficed for them. Bailey said simply, 'As you say." He put the car in gear and backed it up, and Rosalie watched his profile as he did so and she saw the tightening muscle in his cheek. When he had wheeled the car out from the curb and turned it in the street and headed it the other way, she laid her hand over his bare hand on the steering wheel.

"Bailey."

"Yes, darling."

"Tomorrow is so near—that's all."

His hand moved under hers and covered it, and clasped it tightly.

"Ah," Rosalie said, on a quick breath, "I knew you'd understand."

So they drove to Bongiovanni's, which was a restaurant in the country. It was nineteen miles up the North Shore. When they got beyond the city traffic and the lights and faces they drove slowly as if they did not care about arriving—as if indeed they had no destination. They sat close together, sometimes holding hands sometimes with Rosalie drawn closer by the curve of Bailey's arm. Once they pulled up beside the road and kissed each other for a long time. Once Rosalie cried heartbrokenly — Rosalie, who never cried.

They talked of nothing but tomorrow, there was no other topic there was no leavening insouciance even in Bailey on this night. The hardest thing that Rosalie had ever had to do was just ahead of her, and for them both it loomed like a black precipice, immediate and high and sheer, where she must go alone. They had approached it for so long, and from so far away, now they were under it, and now they could not see the shining vista of the future, stretching on beyond. They could not even think about that now, or be too sure.

Rosalie said bleakly, "I should have written him. I should have told him in a letter that I wanted a divorce. Oh, darling, why didn't I?" After the armistice—any time after that, after I knew he was all right and coming home—that would have been the time to write and break it to him. That wouldn't have been half so cruel as this. I know it now."

And Bailey said, "It's my fault. I should have made you do it that way. We talked about it at the time, don't you remember?"

"But I thought this would be kinder," Rosalie said. "I thought I'd be a coward to do it that way. Well, it isn't kinder, and it never was, and I am a coward. I'd rather die than have to tell him to his face—when he's so happy."

"That's what I can't bear," she said. "He'll be so happy to be getting home . . ."

That was when she cried in Bailey's arms.

So the short drive was long, and it was after seven when they got to Bongiovanni's. Few people came here in the winter, and no one they knew had ever been encountered here, in all their visits through the autumn. It was the sort of place you stumbled on by accident, and it had little else than that to recommend it.

There was a table called them table, in the farthest booth of all, and Bongiovanni led them to it. They were smiling when he seated them at him and each other.

When they were left alone they became almost gay; now they had much to say and ask, and now they talked of Bailey's job, which was still new, and still a little vague to Rosalie. "I never did know what a broker does exactly." There was that, and there was news of mutual acquaintances.

She was quiet now, and though she watched him while he talked, her eyes intent and intimate upon his face, she did not listen. He did not expect it. When she said 'Bailey," suddenly, it was as if he had been waiting for this interruption.

"Yes," he said. "You talk, darling. It's better if you do."

"I wish you'd met him," Rosalie said. "I wish you knew what he was like. You'd understand better just how this is for me."

"But I understand so well. My darling, do you think I don't?"

"You can't."

She began to try to tell about Phil. She never had before—not really, not relentlessly, like this. For both their sakes, she had left all the things unsaid that might have made Phil too alive to them, too actual, too present. Now she said these things. Now she remembered everything she had forgotten, in the year between. She told it all.

She described Phil for him: the way Phil was; even the way he looked. "He's very blond. He's your exact opposite, in every way, except that he's tall too—he must be nearly as tall as you are. But not strong. He looks a little frail. He's—I can't find just the right word. It's his eyes, they light his face up so—they're what you notice first about him, and remember. And his face is very white, he never has any color at all—"

Driven on, she spoke in short sentences, abrupt, disjointed. "He looks the way he is, that's all," she said at last. "Intense, and eager about life—and idealistic about everything."

She shook her head, barely perceptibly. Her lowered lashes lifted and she stared across at Bailey. "It couldn't be worse, you see," she said. "You see that, don't you? He's the most sensitive person I've ever known—and the gentlest . . ."

Here her voice broke, as it had threatened to, and Bailey said, "Oh, darling—what's the use of this? You mustn't go on this way. You're only punishing yourself."

"It's time I did."

When she spoke again, it was to say, "And he's always been hurt. He's one of those people. It's as if he'd been born to be hurt, just because he can't bear things—as you could, for instance. Or I could. It's the hard people who have all the luck; I know that now. Phil's never had any. I suppose he thought marrying me was the luckiest thing that had ever happened to him . . ."

"He cried at our wedding," she remembered aloud, involuntarily. Her voice was still expressionless. "Oh, not openly, of course—but I could tell. I was thinking of all sorts of things—my veil, whether my veil was hanging properly, and whether or not it was going to rain before we got out of the church, and about the reception, and whether a certain dress had been packed in a certain suitcase . . . All this while I was being married. I've never felt so detached in my life. I just wasn't there. And then I realized Phil was looking at me, and I looked at him, and he was crying."

She paused. "I don't know why I told you that," she said, when she had thought about it. "I don't suppose it really means anything. It just happened, that was all."

She was thoughtful again, and the wind against the windows was loud in the silence. "Yes, and the war," she said presently—abruptly, as she said all these things. Now she glanced at Bailey, almost with accusation. "You liked going to war. It suited you perfectly—like the uniform. Better than anything else ever will, I suppose. It was high adventure, it was living dangerously—all the things you were made for. But Phil—when I think how Phil must have felt about it, and what it must have done to him . . ."

She caught her breath. She said, "And now I do this."

That was the end of the story. Bailey waited, watching her, but she said nothing more. He took her hand and turned it up and kissed the palm of it.

"People get over things, my darling," he said. "That's the thing to remember."

"I know. They do, don't they? After a while."

"Sometimes very soon. Sooner than anyone would think possible, at the time."

"I know," she assented again, but without conviction.

There was another pause. Bailey still held her hand in both of his, on the white table cloth. His eyes still watched her, broodingly. Her face was strained and white, and in her infinite preoccupation she had neglected it for a long while—she had forgotten all about her face, and now for once it was a little shiny for the lack of powder, and her mouth was her own mouth, pink and not crimson. She looked younger this way, simpler and plainer and more real than Bailey had ever seen her look, except in love; and he thought suddenly, "See here, now. You mustn't be too sorry for him." And it was urgent, so he said it, with his voice grown quick and rough.

"What?"

"When you see him," Bailey said. "No matter what he says or does. No matter how he takes it."

"How can I help being sorry for him?" Rosalie asked, from far away. She shook her head. "I don't know what you mean."

"Rosalie, look at me."

She did, but only briefly.

"I mean you belong to me," said Bailey. "Not to him. And I mean that if you pity him too much—you're only going to make it worse for him. The ultimate cruelty would be for you to try to be kind. You know that, don't you? There's only one way to do this, and that's as quickly as you can—and as ruthlessly. That's the only merciful way. It always it."

"I know. I suppose so."

* * *

Bailey took the midnight train back to New York. It was agreed before they parted that Rosalie should telephone him when she could — tomorrow afternoon or evening, if possible; or Thursday surely. He was to be in his apartment at certain stated hours on those two days. They made and memorized a little schedule. They thought of everything.

And she did telephone him, twice, before she telegraphed for him to come. She gave him the brief essential facts. She had told Phil, at the first opportunity. He had taken it better than she had expected. He had not said much, really, except that he wanted her to be happy. He had seemed to understand about it, even in advance—it had not been at all the shock to him that she had feared it would be. He had said, "I had a feeling this would happen. I think I knew it on the ship, on the way home."

He was at Camp Devens now, and would be for another day or two, until he was demobilized. She had not seen him since she told him—not since Wednesday night. She would have to see him once or twice again, of course, to make arrangements, but she didn't know quite when. In the meantime she had told her family . . .

That was on Thursday. It was on Friday that she telegraphed to Bailey, saying, "Please come." Saying only that, and not explaining. Bailey caught the train at five o'clock. He bought the evening papers in the station, and he knew before the train pulled out why she had wired him at the office, and why she had not explained. The story was on the front page of the first paper he took up. "Lt. Phillip Strange Found Shot, Bullet Fatal to Son of Jerome Strange.' That was the headline, and under that, when it was possible to read the shaking print, there were phrases like 'death was apparently accidental" . . . And down at the end, a long way down, there was a final two-line paragraph: "He is survived by his wife, the former Rosalie Hastings, of Boston."

MEAT

AND OUR SECOND YEAR OF THE WAR

7 million Americans under arms . . .

1½ million beyond our borders . . .

All fighters—all meat eaters . . .

As the offensive power of the United Nations grows, so grows the need for meat.

FOOD too has become part of the "grand strategy" of winning this war.

Meat for example: Since the meat industry went on a war footing in 1941, it has furnished our armed forces and our allies 4¾ billion pounds of meat—fresh and canned.

This is the equivalent of 19 billion average meat meals.

More than 1200 American meat packing houses and nearly 1000 sausage makers today are doing their utmost to give our own fighters the best diet in the history of warfare; to supply meat to our fighting allies, and still to give every person not in uniform the nutritional values of meat.

Those who are not directly supplying the armed forces and allies are doing their part to supply the home front.

Meat Animal Population

Secretary Wickard's great food-for-victory program starts at the grass roots, where livestock producers are working night and day, often without adequate help, to break their own already phenomenal records.

We have the land, we have the facilities and we have the will to produce.

Actually there is in this bounteous land one beef animal for every two persons; about the same number of hogs; and better than half as many sheep and lambs.

Even with this enormous supply and more on the way, we at home must tighten our belts and spread out meat a little thinner, but we can thank our lucky stars we have it to spread out.

Why is meat Item No. 1 on Uncle Sam's food shopping list? Why does the man in training get nearly a pound of meat a day? Why is meat a basic part of every Army ration, even down to pocket-size Field Ration K?

Meat, to which man always instinctively has turned, is now recognized by science and by the government as a protective food, containing many of the things which make for health, stamina and vitality.*

To make available these benefits of meat on an unprecedented scale, the meat industry has unleashed the full power of its capacity and skill.

Here are a few of the highlights:

One railroad car now does the work of three in the shipment of boneless beef, which provides just as much meat in 60 per cent less space than required by the sides and quarters shipped during World War I.

The new dehydrated beef and pork take up only one-tenth of the space in ships that would be required by meat in other forms. These amazing new military products, which preserve the good flavor, the character and the good nutrition of meat, also lend themselves readily to air transport.

On the meat production line—a tremendous new surge. Many new and different kinds of canned meats—stepped up 120 per cent—more than double—over total canned meat production a year ago.

A new creation called "Tushonka" (pieces of pork cooked and canned) is now becoming familiar in the rations of our fighting Russian allies. This is one of many new products created especially for war needs.

For months, experts from the livestock and meat industry have visited military centers helping to train cooks in the preparation of meat on a large scale.

* * *

Under the rising scale of offensive effort, the government, the livestock producer, the meat industry, the sausage maker and the meat retailer, are putting forth every effort to make the meat go 'round—at home as well as on the fighting fronts.

Under necessary restriction orders by the government, deliveries to retailers by the meat industry are limited.

You as a housewife are already at grips with this problem. You have encountered, and will encounter, many shortages and inconveniences.

Who is to blame for them?
Is it the government?	NO.
Is it the livestock producer?	NO.
Is it the meat industry?	NO.
Is it your meat retailer?	NO.

It is a couple of fellows named Adolf and Tojo.

What the Housewife Can Do

The American housewife is meeting the problem with understanding and resourcefulness. She is "sharing the meat." She is buckling down to doing tricks with food which she never dreamed of before.

She realizes that what we have learned about foods in a period of plenty must not be lost in a period of scarcity and self-denial. She knows that strong, healthy bodies are needed to win this war and to build a better world to live in—that there must be no blackout of good nutrition.

Meat is a mainstay of good nutrition.

How can you keep meat on the table regularly, as good nutrition demands?

One way is to learn more cuts of meat—to use the available cuts. Many of these may be new to your table—but they all have the high nutritional value of meat—and can be deliciously prepared. The booklets offered below will help you.

Remember, on the battle fronts and the home fronts, meat is a fighting food. Make every pound count!

Assembly's All Mixed Up On Time Change

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Miss Midnight's Notebook.

Manhattan Glitter: Blond night in the Stork club—Virginia Bruce, Anita Louise, Sonja Henie and Mrs. William Rhinelander Stewart so dazzling that every brunette in the room felt like a dark thought in a blackout. . . . Mrs. F. D. R. stopping off in New York—probably to catch her breath. . . .

Kilgallen

Two divas on the divans at the Barberry room—Lily Pons and Rise Stevens. . . . John L. Lewis and Herbert Hoover passing each other in the lobby of the Waldorf. . . . The Lynn who came east—filmdom's Miss Bari—watching the crowd make merry at the Coq Rouge. . . . Nan Wynn telling it to two marines—who loved hearing it—at Sardi's. . . . Two fellows with fancy feet—Ray Bolger and Hay LeRoy—chinning in the Club room.

A Stone's Throw from Broadway: William Saroyan and Carol Marcus were listening to Carol Bruce carol at the Persian room when suddenly Saroyan, apropos of nothing, said:

"When I hear someone sing, I gotta eat meat and potatoes!"

Henry Youngman, replacing rotund Romo Vincent at the Riobamba, worried audibly about the salary arangements:

"I've got to get a different deal than they made with Vincent," he fussed. "I understand they paid him by the pound."

John D. Rockefeller, jr., lunching alone the other day in the Down Under restaurant, gave up his table to three uniformed lads—who certainly would have needed seats if they'd known who he was. . . . Pat Powers, director of the local Infantile Paralysis Fund campaign, who thought up and put through the idea of Jack Benny's concert debut at Carnegie Hall, didn't hear the comedian do his stuff. He went across the street and listened to Fred Allen's broadcast.

Time Square Cuff Notes: Sir Alexander Korda, now in Manhattan, is slated for one of the most important propaganda jobs in the British Empire. . . . Advance reports on the picture "Air Force" use all the adjectives "thrilling" to "great" and some critics intend to call it the finest picture ever made. . . . Probably few midnighters ever even noticed the meek-looking little girl who not long ago peddled cigarets at the Chateau Moderne. If they had, they might be surprised to hear that she's quit her job because her two brothers went into the services—and she decided to do work closer to the war effort. She's now in Staten Island—driving a tractor!

The Owl Patrol: Terry Lawlor, who has been traveling by Clipper to the various army bases as a USO attraction, returned to New York the other day and found dozens of gaily-wrapped packages marked "Do Not Open Until Christmas." Terry disobeyed—she felt 11 months was too long to wait. . . . Jean Hersholt's in town. Wags like one at the Greenwich Village Inn the other night, still asks him: "How are the quintuplets?" . . . "The Doughgirls" were out with a couple of doughboys at the Stork the other eve. Arleen Whelan with Corporal Alexis Thompson, and, across the room, Doris Nolan with a handsome buck private who managed to conceal his identity . . . Joseph Cotten is the town's newest dream prince—but that pretty blond he takes everywhere is his wife, chums.

All Around the Town: Bonita Granville, very grown-up in piled-high hair and let-down gown (and all kinds of broken hearts in her past!) . . . Clifton Webb and Lady Mendl munching lunch at the Colony. . . . Parkyakarkas reading a book on the care of babies at the "Stage Door Canteen" radio show rehearsal. His wife is ill, and can't get any servants on the coast, so Parky has to give up his New York jobs and go back to help take care of the baby!

Faces in Places: Ralph Bellamy, Paul Douglas and Jimmy Dorsey serving as choral background for Pat Harrington's Irish folk songs at the 18 Club. . . . Abe Lyman playing his sentimental arrangement of "Daddy's Letter" at the Lincoln Blue room—even the waiters cry over it, a couple of times a night. . . . Sigmund Romberg looking reflective at the Russian tea room.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—There is something about the set of "Lady in the Dark" which puts a guy in a fog.

Visiting there is a wonderful way to bring out your latent psychoses and neuroses. First you get through the stage door and smack you go against the backside of a backdrop. You skirt the obstacle, tripping over an uncommon profusion of snaky cables, and you're in the editorial department of the swank magazine "Allure."

Coons

This is a plushy affair, full of stately, beautiful gals who are dressed to kill, or merely to model the sleek clothes they're sporting. There are sketch artists at their desks and out in the mirror-lined, deep-carpeted hallway there's the big blue box which is the color camera.

You do a double-take when a blonde model walks up to a long mirror and, instead of pausing to admire herself, walks right through it as if it weren't there, which it isn't.

* * *

You look around quickly for the Mad Hatter, the Red Queen, and the White Rabbit, but all you see is Mitchell Leisen, the director, and a lot of workmen pushing or pulling things. So you do a broken-field hop-skip-and-jump, tripping over two cables but emerging successfully through a glassless glass door into Ginger Rogers' private office—a very cushy spot.

Ginger is the magazine editor in the dark of a psychopathic dilemma. She's the lady who takes her dream fantasies to a psychiatrist for interpretations—just as Gertrude Lawrence did in the stage version of the Moss Hart play. A color camera can really go to town on a dream—there's nothing quite so fetching as a neurosis in rose and gold or misty blue.

You find Ginger in her sanctum sanctorum, dressed smartly in a brown suit and hat, with upswept hair like a picture from "Allure." She has to be careful how she sits because if she wrinkles they iron her skirt—they press it with Ginger inside it. There are people moving around and about, as in a dream sequence, and the confusion mounts.

* * *

Ginger says she's really a lady in the dark. Gets up before dawn, and usually gets away from work after dark.

She says she's already working for nothing, having exceeded her earning quota with this picture, and any more pictures she makes this year will be no good to Ginger's bank account. She says it's unconstitutional, and the laborer is worthy of his hire, and she's written her congressman, but she'll probably make pictures anyway.

All this doesn't lessen the confusion.

On the way out you skirt a wide path around some grotesquely draped dummies which seem to be doing a spring dance. Here's where you give up and call for a blue mist to hide in.

ERROL FLYNN TO BEGIN HIS OWN DEFENSE TODAY

Scheduled to Take Stand, If Lesser Witnesses Don't Get Too Embroiled.

(By United Press)

HOLLYWOOD — If the lesser witnesses don't get too embroiled over who's spoofing whom, Errol Flynn begins his day in court this afternoon in the case of the two teen-age girls who charge him with statutory rape.

If Flynn's bodyguard, Buster Wiles, talks too long in defense of the boss, said Attorney Jerry Giesler, the movie hero will postpone until tomorrow his flat denial of the charges presented by Betty Hansen, 17-year-old waitress, and Peggy Satterlee, 16-year-old showgirl.

Flynn insists that while he took Miss Satterlee yachting he had no intimate relations with her. He claims further that while he met Miss Hansen at a dinner party, he barely spoke to her and remembered her only as "a washed-out blonde."

Upon the jury's decision concerning who's telling the truth, and who isn't, hangs the possibility of Flynn spending up to 50 years in San Quentin prison. Among Miss Satterlee's charges, incidentally, is the one that he called her his little S. Q. Q. meaning his "San Quentin Quail."

The defense already has assailed the stories of Flynn's accusers, particularly that of Miss Hansen, the luncheonette sandwich slicer, who charges that he took her upstairs after dinner at the Bel Air home of Fred McEvoy, undressed her—except for shoes—and subjected her to attack.

McEvoy, an Australian with a broad chest and an accent as clipped as his blonde mustache, testified that Miss Hansen had crashed the party, that she'd sat on the arm of Flynn's chair, that she'd taken one sip of a Martini cocktail—and that she'd been ignored all evening by his friend, Flynn.

McEvoy said he later went to bed in the blue bedroom, where Miss Hansen claimed she was attacked.

"The bed wasn't mussed," McEvoy said.

OHIO COLLEGES TO LOSE 3,600

Student Reservists Will Be Called For Duty at End of Present Term.

(By Associated Press)

Ohio colleges will lose more than 3,600 students when the army calls up its enlisted reservists in the near future, a survey showed today.

Hardest hit will be Ohio State, where athletic teams, like those in many other schools, will be riddled as 1,000 youths leave for military camps.

Ohio Wesleyan has 387 reservists who will be affected, Ohio university 350, Xavier 250, Miami 254, Akron university 155, Western Reserve 150, University of Cincinnati 150, Kent State 141, Bowling Green 137, Wilberforce 101, Capital 79, Denison 75, Youngstown 72, Marietta 71, Ohio Northern 41, Mount Union 35, Otterbein 30 and Muskingum 22.

How soon the reservists will leave depends on whether the college operates on the semester or quarterly plan. The call will be for induction of reservists at the end of the first college term after Dec. 31, 1942.

The call also is expected to force many more colleges to use freshmen on athletic teams.

Prof. Thomas E. French, Ohio State's representative on the western conference athletic board, said the order "undoubtedly" would bring another vote on the question of using yearlings in Big Ten sports.

The board which meets at Chicago in March recently turned down by "a close vote" a proposal to play freshmen after three months residence at a school, he added.

East Can Expect Bigger Shipments Soon Says Railroad Man.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— John J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, told a senate fuel oil and gasoline investigating committee today that a 15 per cent increase in oil shipments to the east coast is anticipated in the next 30 days.

"Our aim of 1,000,000 barrels a day to the east by next fall is not fantastic," Pelley said.

SPEAKER FOR Y.W.C.A. DINNER TO DESCRIBE CHINA AT WAR

A first-hand account of China at war will be presented before the Young Women's Christian association here Friday night at the association's annual dinner meeting in the Park Avenue Baptist church by Miss Marion Dudley, advisory secretary for the Y. W. C. A. in South China for six years before her internment by the Japanese.

Miss Dudley will draw her subject material from her experiences in the Stanley internment camp where she was detained for nine months along with 3,000 other Americans, British and Dutch as well as from her lengthy associations in China as a Y. W. C. A. executive.

Her talk will follow a program in which members of the association will participate including the Beta Gamma club girls and a group of the "Saturday House" children. The annual reports and election of officers will be deferred until a meeting scheduled for Tuesday night, Feb. 9.

Miss Dudley, who had devoted much of her time to establishing refugee camps prior to her own internment had returned to her headquarters in Hongkong just 12 days before Pearl Harbor and was there during the siege of the city.

As a members of the international welfare committee she surveyed the wardrobes of prisoners at the camp and a sewing group was organized to make clothing out of the only available material, the covering from sandbags. This was fashioned into clothes, hats and even shoes. Pocketbooks and gloves were collected to make shoes for children who had outgrown their own and hospital sheets, delivered to the camp by mistake, were cut up into supplies for infants.

MISS MARION DUDLEY

Miss Dudley will arrive Thursday to be the guest of Miss Bertha A. Gregory, executive secretary, with whom she served the Y. W. C. A. at Utica, N. Y. Upon leaving Mansfield she will go to Youngstown and then to Canada for a series of speaking engagements.

Mrs. Irl Fischer, president of the Y. W. C. A. board, will preside at the dinner and Mrs. Wallace Campbell will act as program chairman. Rev. A. L. Linder, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will give the invocation.

Group singing led by Miss Estelle Smith with Miss Jean Shively as accompanist will feature the meeting and the program will include a square dance by the Beta Gamma girls.

North Africa Gets Shipment From British Isles.

LONDON —(AP)— Large quantities of food and other materials have been sent for the United Nations from Britain to the civilian population of North Africa as an emergency measure, the ministry of production said today.

These supplies were marked red, white and blue labels bearing American, British and French flags. The caption, in French, read: "Delivered by the United Nations whose fleets rule the waves."

Laff-a-Day

"Did I misunderstand you to say you'd rather dance than eat?"

Members of the Coast Guard Auxiliary class, which meets weekly for instruction at John Simpson school, got a surprise last night when Instructor Robert M. Lamb showed them how to chart a projected trip. Lamb began to unroll a chart which members expected to show a portion of the Great Lakes. Instead the course was an imaginary one which Lamb had devised with land points and water markings named for various members of the class.

The two half-grown kitten mascots of the Mansfield postoffice left the department almost as unceremoniously as they appeared some weeks ago but the force is of the opinion that their leave-taking might not have been of their own doing, after considering an incident that happened a few days ago. A postal clerk just noticed a customer leaving the building with one of the kittens tucked under an arm. Upon inquiring where the customer was going with the kitten the customer replied, "I'm taking it home." The clerk said she "couldn't do that because the kitten is a postoffice mascot." Whereupon the customer dropped the kitten. But now the postal staff is wondering if other visitors had the same notion and finally made off with both mascots.

HERBERT SAYS OHIO MEASURE WILL BE O. K.

Points Out Law Would Be Valid But Would Result In Two Kinds of Time.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Governor Bricker today endorsed a time change in Ohio with the statement that "it would aid greatly in war production, especially in agricultural production."

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Members of the Ohio legislature became so involved today in the issue of turning back the clock hands an hour that one of them decided to ask the courts to decide: "What time is it?"

Here was the situation:

Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert ruled that the legislature had authority to nullify the daylight-saving war-time by backing up the clocks. He pointed out, however, that such legislation would leave Ohio with two times—Ohio time and the hour-faster war-time set by congress.

Lieut. Gov. Paul M. Herbert and Sen. Frank E. Bubna (R-Cuyahoga) expressed the opinion Ohio still was on Eastern Standard time, an hour slower than war-time, and that no time-change law was needed. But E. G. Schuessler, chief counsel for the attorney general, insisted informally that Ohio officially, technically and in reality was on war-time.

Senator Bubna said he would introduce a bill to conform Ohio officially with war-time.

Bubna also planned to offer a resolution asking congress to do something about the situation, which resulted in the introduction of 19 time-change bills in the legislature.

A delegation of Ohio legislators was in Washington pleading with the War Production board to tell them whether it would be O.K., and not deterimental to war production, for Ohio to turn back the clock.

The War Production board, which has contended that daylight saving time is essential to the conservation of electric energy, declined immediately to recede from its position, although it promised further study of the situation as it affected Ohio and Michigan, which is on the same time as Ohio.

Attorney General Herbert ruled the Ohio legislature was permitted by the federal constitution to fix any time it wished for purely intra-state activities. Congress in establishing war-time on Feb. 9, 1942, did not bind the states to conform, he added, although congress could so bind the states in its exercise of war powers.

The house completed enactment of legislation appropriating $6,274,000 to pay off the remainder of the school foundation program debt.

The senate approved unanimously the administration's bill to repeal the sales tax on food consumed in public places. The measure now goes to the house.

24 Injured When Street Cars Ram Together Head-on

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Twenty-four persons today suffered minor injuries as the result of the head-on crash of two street cars in downtown Columbus.

William H. Miller, 50, motorman of one of the cars, suffered head cuts and possible fractures of the right knee and left wrist. Miller's car, it was reported, hit an open switch, swung west and collided with a southbound car operated by C. W. Ashton, 34, who was uninjured.

Superintendent of transportation H. V. Potts said the two cars were loaded with approximately 135 persons. Police said most of the injured suffered cuts from flying glass while some of the passengers were bruised when knocked down by the impact.

BANK CLEARINGS FINISH AT HIGH

Employment Down But Year's Transactions Are Second Highest on Record.

Despite an employment slump in Mansfield during 1942 while plants were converting to war production, the city's bank clearings for the year were the second highest on record and only $164,796 below the all-time high in 1941.

Mansfield banks in 1942 cleared $121,303,143 as against $121,467,939 in 1941, H. A. McElhaney, Clearing House secretary, said.

The Clearing House association report for 1942 shows that clearings during the first four months of the year piled up a big margain over the corresponding months of 1941 and then went into a tailspin.

The slump began in May, but there was a slight recovery in June. Beginning in July, however, and continuing until the end of the year the 1942 monthly figures were below the preceding year.

Best month last year was March when clearings totaled $11,523,703, believed an all-time high for a month in Mansfield business. The poorest month was February when clearings dropped to $8 659,479.

Brisk Christmas business in December helped to bring the monthly figure up to $9,760,245, a gain of more than $300,000 over November.

Britain Scrutinizes.

Laird Cregar's portrayal of Sir Henry Morgan, the fantastic freebooter, who reformed to become governor of Jamaica in "The Black Swan," showing at the Ohio, came in for special scrutiny by the British government. Historians are divided as to whether Morgan, after being knighted, ever did reform or went right on practicing piracy. In the film however he leads a life of above reproach. Tyrone Power stars in the picture and the supporting cast includes George Sanders and Anthony Quinn.

Tygers Trample Jackets 49 to 38 on Mt. Vernon Court

Sport Podge by REX HESS

"I had no idea when I came up here to Shelby that I'd find such a bunch of little kids," confided Tommy Render, Whippet football coach, during a recent brief fan-fest with the Podger and cage Coach Vern Hoffman of the Mansfield Tygers.

"From my coaching days at Mt. Gilead, I remembered Shelby as a very tough ball club. This looked like a great spot to me."

Bender wasn't expressing dissatisfaction with his coaching job at Shelby. Far from it. "I just wasn't prepared to find the bunch of little kids who turned out for football," he explained. "And Larry Swackhamer is having the same problem in basketball. Oh, well, maybe times will change and we'll get the kind of boys Shelby used to have."

* * *

"Maybe this new air depot will bring some families to Shelby with the big boys you need," I suggested.

Bender grinned. "Those things hardly ever work out that way," he said, "but I'll gladly take any boys it can bring me.

"The worst part of our situation right now," he continued, "is that we can't do anything about building up a system to produce athletes for the future

"I just got a letter," reports Harry the Merry Mebock, "from a kid named Judy, who used to be one of our trainers out here at the high school, and who is now in North Africa with Uncle Sam's armed forces.

"And this Judy kid says that his mother sends him the clippings every week of your Sport Podge, and he just got through reading one of them before writing me this letter.

* * *

"Why," whyed the Merry one, "our stuff goes all over the world, doesn't it?"

"Sure," I told him, "I am getting an international reputation." But it really isn't so funny. Realization that the boys in service all over the world are getting the home town paper, and are apt now and then to show the paper to other boys from all over the world, is apt to give a guy pause. In fact it's apt to make a guy worry a bit about the kind of stuff he dishes out from day to day through the medium of the public prints

* * *

But my big worry is still just filling this corner from day to day. And many's the day when a letter from a boy in the armed forces has saved this corner from going blank.

Rams Defeated By Red Birds

Drops First Game With Poston Out of Lineup.

Playing their first game without veteran Center Delbert "Doc" Poston, Madison high school Rams bowed to Loudonville's Red Birds 38-32 Madison last night 32-38. Poston observed his 20th birthday anniversary yesterday and is ineligible for further play.

* * *

It was sweet revenge for Loudonville, as Madison had scored its first cage victory in history over the Birds earlier in the season at Loudonville.

* * *

But Madison gave the Birds a battle. It was all tied up at 11-11 at the quarter, and the Rams were even in front 23-18 at the half. Loudonville spurted in the third period while the Rams were getting only three points, and took a 30-26 lead.

Harold Hammer, diminutive Ram forward, led both teams in scoring with 16 points.

Sees Prosperous Season If Baseball Put Up Good Show

By JERRY HEALEY

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Professional baseball is going to have a "great" year despite the war if the leagues "give a good show for value received." That was the opinion today of Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland Indians.

Bradley was backed up by his manager, Lou Boudreau, in the opinion that the national sport would not suffer from the pangs of global war. The "kid" manager quoted Lieutenant Commander Russell Cook in charge of athletic activities at the Great Lakes naval training station, as saying that he had not found one man at the station who was definitely against baseball, and that most of them greed that "the nation can take a step forward by seeing that baseball is continued."

"There are still a lot of great baseball players in our league," Bradley declared at a dinner of the Cleveland Chapter of the Baseball Writers of America in honor of Ken Keltner, Indian third baseman picked as the most valuable player of the Tribe in the 1942 season, "and all that depends on a good financial year is whether we give a good show for the money.

"The curtain will drop on baseball if we don't."

Bradley said he believed that despite gasoline rationing the Indians would draw as many customers as last year.

Boudreau, about to start his second year as pilot of the Tribe, beamed confidence as he declared:

"We've got the team to beat for the 1943 pennant. We had a tough spot to fill—a catcher—and we think we've filled it with Buddy Rosar."

(The Indians gave up outfielder Roy Weatherly and utility infielder Oscar Grimes in exchange for Rosar and outfielder Roy Cullenbine in a trade with the New York Yankees.)

"If we can improve the team," Boudreau added, "we'll do it even if it increases our cost. If I'd had more Keltners on our team last year we would have finished higher in the league last year. (The Tribe finished fourth.)

"I really think we've got something to brag about this year but the St. Louis Browns will be tough and don't forget it."

Ontario Edges Minute Men

Season's Biggest Chowd Sees 22 to 21 Victory.

Even balance of the Richland county high school basketball league was demonstrated again last night at Ontario as the Warriors edged Lexington 22-21 on Jack Elliott's bucket in the last minute of play. It was a non-league tilt.

Biggest crowd of the season turned out for the game, and got plenty of thrills as the close feature attraction was preceded by a 22-20 victory by Ontario reserves in thep reliminary.

In the main game Ontario was off in its shooting, missing numerous sucker shots and hitting only two out of nine free tosses, but the Warriors stepped ahead in the first quarter for a 6 5 lead.

Lexington tied it up at 12 12 at the half, but Ontario took a 4-2 margin in the low-scoring third period. Lexington had the edge in scoring 7-6 in the last stanza, and was ahead until Elliott's game-winning bucket.

Frosh Use Expected In Big Ten

Army's Reserve Call May Force New Vote.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— The Western conference ban on freshman athletes may go by the boards as a result of the war department order calling up the bulk of the enlisted Reservists, Ohio State University athletic circles hinted today.

The waiving of the frosh rule has been discussed by the Big Ten for some time but the powers-that-be have been reluctant to take action as the ban, in normal times, has proved to be virtually an insurmountable hurdle for the so-dubbed "tramp" athlete.

* * *

Prof. Thomas E. French, Ohio State's faculty representative on the Western conference board, said the war department's action undoubtedly will force another vote on the freshman question when the Big Ten directors meet again in Chicago in March.

* * *

The conference considered lifting of the freshman ban at its Chicago meeting last month but it was turned down by a very close vote Under the plan then under consideration, a boy would have to have a quarter's residence in school before he became eligble.

The approximately 30 athletes at Ohio State University who are enlisted Reservists will not be called before March 19, the end of the current winter quarter at Ohio State University, according to present interpretations of the war department's announcement.

However, the ruling will hit Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan of the Big Ten immediately as these schools operate on the semester plan and their second semesters are not yet under way.

* * *

Illinois' defending basketball champs stand to lose four key men to the army under the reservist call, only Andy Phillip, the leading Big Ten scorer, and Gene Vance of the regulars being unaffected.

* * *

Ohio State stands to lose 10 veteran gridders at the conclusion of the present quarter under the new arrangement. They are:

Captain-elect Charles Csuri, Cleveland, tackle; Gene Fekete, Findlay fullback and leading Big Ten scorer last year; Paul Sarringhaus, Hamilton halfback; Tommy James, Massillon halfback; Lin Houston, Massillon guard; Bill Durtschi, Galion halfback; Dante Lavelli, Hudson end; Bob Frye, Crestline halfback, and Wib Schneider, Gahanna guard, and John White, River Rouge, Mich., end.

The draft status of only a few Ohio State frosh gridders is changed, most of them being subject to call anyway. Tommp Phillips, the Berea backfield flash, and Joe Whisler, Willard fullback, did not return to school for the winter quarter, realizing they are about to be called.

At least four members of the Buckeye track team also will become eligible for the army under the new regulations. Ohio State publicity chief Jim Renick said he had not yet compiled a list of reservises in other sports.

OHIO COLLEGES HIT

COLUMBUS —(INS)— A survey of Ohio's universities and colleges today revealed that more than 3,000 youths from over the state would leave school for military camps as a result of the war department's order calling enlisted reservists to active service.

Twenty-five per cent of John Carroll's student body is in the reserve. Kent and Bowling Green State universities, Oberlin college and Baldwin-Wallace reported they will lose 10 per cent of their student bodies.

* * *

All of Marietta college's basketball team, with the exception of Captain Fred Amrine, is in the enlisted reserve.

* * *

Ohio Wesleyan reported the order "will take just about all our athletes."

At least 20 university of Cincinnati athletes are eligible for the call to service. Coach Clem Crowe of Xavier, said very few members of Xavier university's squad will be affected by the order.

Ohio university has 350 student members to the reserve; Ohio Wesleyan 387; Xavier 250, Miami 254; Akron university 155; Green 137; Kent State 141; Capital university 79; Denison university 75; Youngstown college 72; Marietta 71; Ohio Northern 41; Otterbein 30, and Muskingum 22.

BARONS SCORE 9-2 WIN OVER WASHINGTON

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Shocked at the prospect of becoming cellar champions, the Cleveland hockey Barons surged ahead in last night's game with the Washington Lions, and today rest in triumph by virtue of a 9 to 2 score in their favor.

Goals were scored by Les Cunningham, and Tony Leswick, who whipped the puck into the pay-off nettin' at 14:03, and 27 seconds respectively. The Baron victory marked the biggest score in favor the Cleveland team since the opening of arena hockey in 1937.

WILLIAM PAPALEO, better known as Willie Pep, Hartford's gift to the fighting profession, looks serious enough above to be thinking about something drastic. Pep plans no murder, but will be trying to commit boxing assault and battery against Allie Stolz, Newark lightweight, in a 10-rounder in New York, Jan. 29. Pep, recognized by the New York fistic fathers as featherweight boss, isn't shooting for a chance at the lightweight toga, but aiming at his 58th straight ring victory.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Cadets at the North Carolina Navy Pre-Flight school will get some of their exercise next summer cultivating a 14-acre victory garden under the guidance of Lieut. Commander Harvey Harman, the athletic director, and Ensign Warren Chivers, former Dartmouth ski star. . . . And members of the Mid-Atlantic Greenkeepers association recently were urged to coax golf club members to do the same thing by turning the courses into huge gardens . . . Chances are the golfers would find it easier than the aviation cadets.

A HAND FOR HANS.

Just after the world series, Hans Lobert of the Phils learned that one of his old West Point baseball pupils, Lieut. Col. Red Reeder, was heading for Australia so he gave a letter to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who was superintendent of the military academy when Hans was coach. . . . The other day Lobert got a reply from Reeder, telling how the letter had been presented by General Sutherland, brother-in-law of Bucky Harris. . . . "For 25 minutes he (MacArthur) talked of football, baseball and you," Reeder said. "When it was time for me to leave, he got up and stood staring out a window. 'Red,' he said, 'you tell that old rascal Hans Lobert that at night when the pressure is on and it's hard for me to go to sleep, I'm able to rest only by thinking of those days at West Point when I was superintendent and he was our jolly baseball coach'."

Iowa Cager Takes Lead In Scoring

CHICAGO —(INS)— With Andy Phillip, Illinois ace, taking time out to bone for his mid-semester tests, Co-captain Tom Chapman of Iowa assumed the lead in the western conference basketball scoring race today.

Chapman, who garnered 36 field goals and 22 free throws for 94 points in six conference games, displaced Phillip by 2 points. Although he has played in only four conference games, Phillip clung to second place with 40 baskets and 12 free throws for 92 points.

In third place with Ralph Hamilton, Indiana forward, with 87 points. Ben Trickey, co-captain with Chapman on Iowa's quintet, was in fourth place with 73 points.

Baker Again Goes on 18-Point Hoop Spree

Hoffman Hoopsters Hit Average Of 36 Per Cent In Shooting

By WALLY DAVIS

MANSFIELD HIGH TYGERS continued their high scoring antics last night, trouncing the Mt. Vernon Yellow Jackets, 49 to 38, on the Mt. Vernon hardwood.

Paced by Bobby "Peanuts" Baker, the Tygers cut loose with a 17-point splurge in the second quarter to build up a commanding lead, which they held for the remainder of the game without too much trouble.

* * *

Baker and Bill Wright, the Jackets' star guard, staged an individual scoring battle with the Tyger forward coming out on top by a single point.

* * *

Baker flipped in seven buckets and four foul shots for 18 tallies, the second straight game in which he has amassed this total, while Wright had 17 for the Jackets.

The Tygers were really shooting for keeps, racking up their best shot average of the campaign. The Hoffman hoopsters made 20 of 56 tries for a 36 per cent mark. They made good on nine of ten free throws for the enviable record of 90 per cent.

The Tygers were slow getting started, failing to score a bucket in the first four minutes of play. They soon found the range, however, and were leading as the initial quarter ended.

Wright made the first bucket from under the hoop. Hahn and Baker got free throws for the Tygers and it was tied up. Vandervelde hit from the side for the Jackets. Lamoreux dropped in a foul shot. Doug Myers put the Tyger in front with a long shot, and Hahn increased the advantage with a two-pointer from the side. Lamoreux got his second free point. Les Myers scored on a lay-up and Mansfield led 10 to 4. Sapp tallied from under the bucket as the quarter ended.

* * *

Baker hit on a lay-up, his first basket. Wright scored his first point on a free throw and came back with a good side shot. Hess' bucket cut the Tygers' lead to 12-11.

* * *

Doug Myers and Hahn connected for Mansfield and the rally was on. Vandervelde scored under the net for Mt. Vernon. Baker got a free throw and Lamoreux hooked one in from the side making it 19-13. Wright scored from the side. Hahn tossed one in from under the basket and Lamoreux followed with a sucker shot. Baker tallied on a lay-up, putting the Tygers in front, 25-15. Russell got two free points but Baker shoved another one in from the side just before the half ended.

* * *

Trailing 27-17, the Yellow Jackets started to get troublesome in the third frame, cutting the Tygers' advantage to two points under way in the period.

* * *

Lewis made a free throw for Mansfield but Wright countered with a pair of buckets in rapid order for Mt. Vernon.

Hess hit from the side and Wright made another from midcourt. Vandervelde got a free throw.

Baker rallied the Tygers, whipping in two quick buckets to make it 32-26

Mansfield duplicated its second quarter spree in the final frame, again getting 17 points. Hahn scored from under the hoop and Lamoreux followed with a sucker shot. Wright tallied from the side.

Baker scored three straight buckets to ice the game. Hahn hit from the side. Lamoreux got another from the same spot. Sapp dropped in a lay-up. With a 15-point lead, Coach Hofman pulled his first team. Foster made one from the side.

* * *

Wright scored from underneath. McBride ended the Tygers scoring with a free toss. Kilroy of Mt. Vernon fired in two long shots as the game ended.

* * *

It was the Tygers' third win in a row and it left them two games above the 500 mark. They have won seven of 12 clashes.

The defeat was Mt Vernon's fifth as against four victories.

Reese Called for Army Examination

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — (INS) — Harold "Peewee" Reese, Brooklyn Dodgers shortstop, ordered by his Brooklyn draft board to report for physical examination, said today he would not ask for deferment.

"I'm pretty sure I'm all right physically," he said, "although some of the boys occasionally are surprised by things the army doctors find wrong with them. I don't think anything like that will happen in my case."

Peewee has a 3-A classification, is married and also contributes to the support of his mother and sister.

He received his draft board notice Monday, but said he would write the board to see if he might take the examination in Louisville, his home.

You Will Lay Golden Eggs---

YES, EGGS ARE GOLD!

This year Uncle Sam needs $15,048,000,000 worth of eggs for the armed forces, civilian use and export.

Here, then, is a money-making business for young and old alike; an opportunity for the physically unfit to make a needed contribution to the war effort.

Poultry raising is easier than it once was, too. All you need is a set of coops, a flock of baby chicks, a bag of feed, and you're ready!

If you are seeking a way to make yourself useful to Uncle Sam, here's your opportunity. Raise chickens!

To get off with a bang turn NOW to "Poultry Supplies" in the Want Ads.

STOCK MARKET ACTION KEEPS NARROW TRAIL

U. S. Steel Net Profit Shows Earnings of $5.39 on Common Share.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Turnover was moderately active at the opening of the stock market today but prices cling to a narrow range.

Among fractional gainers were U. S. Steel, Standard Oil (N. J.), Johns-Manville, Pullman and Southern Railway. The slightly lower group included Western Union, U. S. Rubber, General Electric, General Motors, and Montgomery Ward.

Studied for its implications marketwise was the U. S. Steel earnings report showing a net profit for 1942 of $72,142,195, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $539 on common and compared with $116,181,075 or $10.45 on common in 1941.

Also looked over in boardrooms was the report by Secretary of Commerce Jones that U. S. manufacturers turned out $121,000,000,000 in goods during 1942, 30 per cent mort than in 1941 and better than double the 1939 figure.

Mansfielder Told Brother Prisoner Of Japs on Bataan

The sister of a soldier, believed lost on Bataan, received official word yesterday that he is a prisoner of the Japanese while the family of another Richland county soldier, reported missing over the Mediterranean, received unofficial word concerning finding of members of the crew of the Flying Fortress which he piloted.

Cpl. John D. Minnier, a brother of Mrs. A. C. Adams, 563 Garfield Place, "is well and a prisoner of the Japanese," a U. S. army communication revealed yesterday. Minnier, who was a member of a National guard company at Port Clinton, was the third Port Clinton man to have been reported by the government as prisoners of the Japanese. Mrs. Adams, who was listed by her brother as "next of kin" said her message gave no indication of where Minnier was interned.

Members of the Clark Garber family at Butler were encouraged by the report contained in a letter of Jan. 11 from Lieut. James Todd Watson, 24, in Africa, to his mother, Mrs. Todd Watson, 63 Dawson avenue. Lieut. Watson's letter stated that he had heard a report that part of the crew of Lieut. Clark M. Garber, jr., had been picked up. Further details or confirmation of the report were lacking.

Garber and Watson, who had met in this country some years ago, had a reunion in England several weeks ago when Watson came across an issue of the News-Journal in a service men's club room. The addressee was Lieut. Garber, whom he contacted, Mrs. Watson related. First reference to Garber's disappearance was contained in a previous letter of Dec. 17, Mrs. Watson said, who said she placed great credence in her son's report since his previous information had been similar to that received by the Garbers from the war department.

Further, she explained, Lieut. Watson, who is a navigator on a Flying Fortress in the African action, believed to be in Algiers, had written several months ago about the narrow escape Garber had when a bomb load shifted to break through the side of his plane. The Garbers received details of this incident, much as Mrs. Watson's son had written.

Minnier, according to his sister, was a member of Co. C, 192nd tank battalion, which is believed to be the same outfit with which six or seven Mansfield men were serving at the time they were reported missing. Families of none of the local men had received word of their safety, however.

Mrs. Adams said the last letter she had received from her brother was dated Feb. 12, 1942 but that she did not receive it until April 1. At that time he mentioned "heavy fighting" but predicted he would "come home with bells on," Mrs. Adams repeated.

Among Richland countians reported missing in Philippine action are: Sgt. Albert Allen, known to have been in the same tank outfit as Minnier, and Pvts. George Zimmerman, Paul Grassick, Earl L. Charles, Robert L. Miller, John Robinette and probably Nelson Hale.

Cheered by news of her brother's safety, Mrs. Adams said she was confident she would receive further details of his captivity. Parents of Mrs. Adams and Minnier are dead.

RIDE SHARING BOGGING DOWN

Director Says Motorists Fail To Help Others.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The share-the-ride program, which was designed to save rubber and ease the public transportation system load, has bogged down in Ohio because of public apathy, State Defense Director Ralph H. Stone said today.

He asked for motorists to form or join share-the-ride clubs and thus live up "to the spirit of the gasoline rationing program."

Stone said that he had received many letters from persons who criticised motorists with "B" and "C" ration cards who refuse to transport others.

FDR, CHURCHILL PART TO OPEN '43 CAMPAIGN

Agree on Master War Plan at Historic Meeting In French Morocco.

The timing of the meeting was particularly fortunate from an Allied standpoint, with German troops reeling in Soviet Russia and Africa, with Italy having just been stripped of its last symbol of African empire, and with Japan being smashed in New Guinea.

Here are the highlights of the conference which Roosevelt and Churchill, in a Sunday summary, agreed was unprecedented and would affect the course of the war:

One—Military and civil leaders of both nations agreed on a 1943 plan designed to retain the initiative in every war theater.

Two—Roosevelt and Churchill perhaps in anticipation of Axis peace feelers, agreed that peace could come only through unconditional surrender of the three major Axis partners.

Three—Generals Giraud and De Gaulle met for the first time under sponsorship of the president and prime minister to negotiate for an effective union of their two forces.

Four—Stalin was kept informed. Churchill and Roosevelt disclosed they had offered to meet the Russian leader—whose armies have dealt such prodigious blows to the Germans—at a point "very much further to the east."

But it was pointed out that because of the big Red army winter offensive Stalin was unable to leave the country. The two Allied leaders also communicated with Chiang Kai-Shek and "have appraised him of the measures which they are taking to assist him in China's magnificent and unrelaxing struggle for the common cause."

Five—Maximum material aid to Russia and China will be one of the prime aims of the U. S. and Britain.

The conferences were held at a small hotel in Casablanca's suburbs under the greatest secrecy. Those participating engaged a cluster of nearby villas for living quarters and the area was guarded heavily by U. S. troops and was surrounded by barbed-wire.

Churchill flew from Britain in an American four-motored Liberator bomber, the same aircraft he used for his August trip to Cairo and Moscow. Capt. William Vanderklott of Sarasota, Fla., and the same crewmen of the previous flight again were recruited.

Aside from the fact that he flew across the Atlantic, details of the president's trip still have not been disclosed.

Churchill arrived first. When the president landed he dispatched Harry Hopkins, chairman of the British-American munitions assignment board, to Churchill's villa, and the prime minister returned with him to begin the talks.

The first one began at 7 p. m., the night of Jan. 14 and lasted until 3 a. m., the next day. Military bigwigs participated, as did the field commanders of both nations charged with smashing the Axis-held strip of Tunisia preparatory to opening a possible second front on the underside of Europe.

President Roosevelt received correspondents in the red-flowered garden of his villa Sunday afternoon while American fighters and RAF Spitfires hummed overhead protectingly.

The only woman present was WAAC Capt. Louise Anderson of Denver, a stenographer from Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters.

First to arrive was Hopkins and the president's son, Lieut. Col. Elliott Roosevelt, who is stationed in Africa.

Then Generals De Gaulle and Giraud appeared from the president's quarters, followed by Roosevelt himself, clad in a light gray suit and with the usual cigaret holder. Hovering in the background was the president's envoy to North Africa, Robert Murphy, who did valuable contact work with the French before the Allied invasion.

Churchill, smoking a cigar and dressed in a dark gray suit, then appeared.

General Giraud and De Gaulle shook hands for the benefit of the correspondents, then retired as the conference got underway.

First Roosevelt expressed his own and Churchill's regret at the death of one correspondent, Edouard Baudry of the Canadian Broadcasting corporation. Baudry was struck by a machine-gun bullet over Spanish Morocco when the plane in which he was riding with other correspondents en route to the meeting lost its way temporarily. He died when the plane made an emergency landing in French Morocco.

The president then explained the background of the historic meeting. It became clear, he said, when the North African campaign was launched that he and the prime minister would have to meet again.

Stalin had been cordially invited to meet the president and prime minister but was "unable to leave Russia at this time on account of the great offensive which he himself as commander-in-chief is directing."

Then, with Churchill nodding assent, Roosevelt said the 10-day conference had ended in "complete agreement" on 1943 plans to bring about the "unconditional surrender" of the Axis. This did not mean, the president said, the destruction of the populations of Germany, Japan and Italy, but it did mean the smashing of the philosophy of these countries based on conquest and reigns of terror.

Here Churchill interjected "hear, hear," as if he were home attending a parliamentary session.

Allied determination to press the war initiative in every part of the world was stressed. Roosevelt said that a "theater by theater" survey, as the communique phrased it, had been made.

This was interpreted to mean that Allied military chieftains had mapped invasion plans and probably also picked their generals for such field posts.

All the chieftains were present for the meetings—Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the U. S. Army; Gen. Sir Alan Brooke, chief of the Imperial general staff; Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the U. S. Navy; admiral of the fleet Sir Dudley Pound; Lieut. Gen. H. H. Arnold, commander of the U. S. Army air forces; and Air Chief Marshal Sir Charles Portal, chief of Britain's air staff.

In emphasizing the aim of the Allied high command, the president suggested that the entire meeting be called "the unconditional surrender" conference, and recalled that Gen. U. S. Grant had borne that nickname after defeating the Confederate armies.

One of the main decisions reached was to lend all possible material aid to the Russians who are sapping German manpower and war materials, the president said. He added that China was to get a full measure to help end forever the Japanese attempt to dominate the Far East.

The French generals themselves issued a terse joint communique which said:

"We have met. We have talked. We have registered entire agreement on the end to be achieved, which is the liberation of France and the triumph of human liberties by the total defeat of the enemy. This end will be attained by union in war of all Free Frenchmen fighting side by side with all Allies."

(Dispatches from Allied headquarters in North Africa, however, said it was going to be a long, laborious job to get these two French leaders into an effective union.)

Congress Feeling On Parley 'Mixed'

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Congressmen were thrilled by President Roosevelt's willingness "to risk his own life" in promoting the war effort, but some criticized the fact that Premier Josef Stalin and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek were not at the Casablanca conference.

Chairman Walter F. George, D., Ga., of the senate finance committee, hoped that high representatives of China and the Soviet Union were there even though their leaders were not. Sen. Robert A. Taft, R., O., and Rep. Hamilton Fish, R., N. Y., thought it would have been better had both Stalin and Chiang Kai-Shek been present.

Chairman Tom Connally, D., Tex., of the senate foreign relations committee, emphasized the fact that Churchill and the president had met under hazardous conditions.

"While American soldiers are risking their lives on distant fronts," Connally said, "they can now be inspired by the high courage of their commander-in-chief and the knowledge that their leader is willing to risk his own life.

"If the Axis leaders have not lost all sense of proportion, they will know that this example signifies the granite determination of the United Nations to fight until victory is achieved."

Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., pre-war non-interventionist and leading opponent of the administration's foreign policy, said:

"The meeting evidenced great showmanship. But why Casablanca? It would have been more appropriate in the United States or in England.

"The people are interested in what Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill decided to do with North Africa and India after the war, and what agreements, if any, were arrived at on general post-war plans. The announcements made thus far throw no light on these matters at all."

Other congressional comment:

House Speaker Sam Rayburn, D., Tex.—"Anything less than unconditional surrender would not be achieving our ends."

House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr., Mass.—"I am glad to know that there is agreement on 'unconditional surrender.'"

Rep. James W. Wadsworth, R., N. Y.—"I do not think it is very significant that Stalin and Chiang Kai-Shek were not present."

Chairman Andrew J. May, D., Ky., of the house military affairs committee — "Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill probably accomplished enough to determine the fate of the whole world for centuries to come."

Chinese Know How To Use Promised Aid

(Editor's Note: James D. White, Associated Press correspondent in China for five years before our war with Japan, here presents Chinese ideas on United Nations strategy which may follow the Roosevelt-Churchill conference.)

By JAMES D. WHITE

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Chinese have pretty definite ideas on how to use the "full measure of help" promised by President Roosevelt after his unprecedented conference with Prime Minister Churchill in North Africa.

It cannot arrive too soon to suit them.

They have been fighting Japan since 1937, and were the first to warn that unless the democracies acted they too would be attacked by Japan.

The promise of increased aid to China comes as a vindication of the predictions of Chinese leaders of all political complexions.

Entrenched in Asia from Manchuria to Burma, Japan now operates as a continental power. She must be overcome by continental offensives.

When Prime Minister Churchill described the North African campaign as exposing the "soft under-belly of Axis Europe," the Chinese lost no time in reviving their old contention that the development and use of Chinese bases by the United Nations would lay equally bare the armored torso of the Japanese empire.

Fortunately, Japan does not occupy the entire Chinese coast, and long stretches of it are in the possession of Chinese guerilla troops in the provinces of Kiangsu, Fukian, and Kuangtung. These coastal areas, though subject to Japanese naval blockade, are potential bases for air and sea attack against Japan.

"Give us the weapons," the Chinese have long pleaded, "and with our millions of men and years of experience fighting the Japanese we will drive them into the sea."

Giraud Reports Substantial Accord

ALGIERS —(AP)— A communique from the headquarters of General Henri Giraud declared today that "substantial results have been obtained for France" in the ten-day meeting of Allied leaders at Casablanca.

"On the occasion of this conference," the communique said, "General Giraud met General De Gaulle.

"This personal contact permitted the first examination of the conditions under which the French effort in the war of liberation might be organized.

"Exchanges of views will be continued on this subject. It has been decided henceforth to establish permanent liaison."

Among the important military agreements reached at the conference was one granting priority to the French African forces on modern armaments indispensible to them, the communique said.

Completion of arrangements, at home and abroad, for a "permanent defense of French interests" was one of the fruits of the talks, it was said.

Willkie Disappointed Over Conference

NEW YORK—(INS)—Wendell L. Willkie expressed disappointment today that the conference in Africa between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill had "accomplished so little."

The former Republican presidential nominee went on the air a few minutes after news of the conference was released. He expressed particular regret that Premier Joseph V. Stalin of Russia and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek of China were not present at the meetings.

"As all Americans expected," Willkie said, "the president did his part in the hazards of the flight, in meeting and reviewing the soldiers and honoring the dead, with fine taste and appropriate spirit.

"As to the results of the conference itself, as given to us in the first communique, one cannot repress a feeling of disappointment.

"We had been led to believe by rumor and numerous advance news reports that great events were shaping. We had hoped that Mr. Stalin and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek might be in attendance, that the four leaders were to sit together and learn to know each other in intimate discussion of common problems. That a grand military strategy board was to be created. That Russia and China were at least to be recognized as equals in the problems of war and the peace to come. That a straightforward policy worthy of our traditions with reference to the tangled and ugly problems of North African politics was to be formulated.

"Perhaps we will learn later that some of these matters not mentioned in the first communique were discussed and clarified between Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt," Willkie continued. "Perhaps they did lay out a plan about the relation of the western democracies to the Asiatic world now and in the future. Maybe the rumors of a grand strategy board will become real. Perhaps the French collaborators were reduced in status and the men who have risked their lives for freedom have at last come into their own in North Africa. Anyway, we will hope that such is the case."

OPEN VICTORY BOOK CAMPAIGN

Holmes County Drive Puts Emphasis on Need For Modern Reading.

MILLERSBURG—The 1943 Victory Book campaign has officially opened in Holmes county, it was announced by Miss Pauline Guscott, local director of the campaign.

Last year Holmes county contributed about 700 books which were sent to army camps all over the country.

This year's campaign will stress the need for good books and will try to discourage wholesale "attic cleaning." Our fighting men deserve the best, said Miss Guscott, and it is little to ask that we give the books we want to keep.

Army and navy officers have indicated a preference for the following kinds of books:

Current best-sellers and book club selections, popular fiction and non-fiction published since 1930; technical books published since 1935, humorous books, pocket books and other small sized editions of popular titles.

The Holmes county library will again serve as the collection agency and everyone is urged to bring in their contributions before March 15.

RING SHORTAGE

British Brides May Not Have Wedding Bands.

LONDON—(AP)—Brides without rings and babies without carriages have been added to the wartime worries of the British.

So far, there are no bare-fingered brides and babies haven't had to walk or use taxis but W. F. Higgs of Birmingham views the near future with concern and wants the board of trade to do something about it.

Higgs is an M.P. from Birmingham West and it is natural for him to be among the early worriers on this problem because the Birmingham region produces a large share of Britain's wedding bands and perambulators.

REAPS ANIMAL DIP IN FIELDS

STILLWATER, Okla.—(AP)—If your next door farmer begins harvesting the mesquite-like plant out in his pasture, don't call for the paddy wagon—he may be reaping a crop of insecticide.

Ever since the Japs overran the Dutch East Indies, the insecticide rotenone—good for dipping animals as well as spraying vegetables—has been hard to come by.

Oklahoma Agricultural experiment station insecticide sleuths believe they have the answer in the cat willow or so-called river locust. This plant has rotenone in its bean and it is about as common on the plains as mesquite.

Map Road To Allied Victory

THE THRILL-PACKED announcement of President Roosevelt's meeting with Prime Minister Winston Churchill, in Morocco, comes at a time when eventual victory for the United Nations can be predicted with greater assurance than after any of their three earlier conferences.

While there has always been a feeling of confidence that sufficient military strength would be built up by the Allies to win the war, this assumed ability had to be demonstrated before forecasts of successful outcome could gain widespread acceptance by peoples of other nations.

Now, however, the tide of battle has turned against the Axis powers and the time is approaching for the "full-scale offensive" toward which the United Nations have been looking, and for which they have been preparing during the past year.

Russia, China, Great Britain and the United States, together with all the other large and small associates of the United Nations, stand as a fighting unit in their determination to force the Axis powers into complete subjugation, with total destruction of their military power and philosophy of conquest.

Unification of Allied strength for global prosecution of the war on all fronts, with a pledge to pool all resources of the United Nations "to enable maintenance of undiminished initiative against Germany, Italy and Japan" is among the outstanding pronouncements following the Morocco conference, together with a pledge by the United States and Great Britain to send all possible aid to Russia and to China.

The expression, "unconditional surrender," which found a place in history in association with the name of General U. S. Grant during the war between the states, again comes to public notice through President Roosevelt's reference to this having been an "unconditional surrender" meeting—which not only serves as inspiration throughout the United Nations and to the tortured victims of Axis aggression, but also sounds a stern warning to the Axis powers that their ultimate defeat is certain—that victory for the United Nations is now merely a matter of time and methods.

Shopping Around for Butter

BY HUNTING around, going from one store or market to another and following through, day after day, you may be able to find some butter—a quarter pound, a half pound, or possibly even a pound.

But it's a time-killing job—when you have other things that you should be doing—and there's also an element of annoyance over the fact that the butter shortage was anticipated long in advance . . . and nothing done about it by rationing authorities.

Now an anonymous OPA official explains the delay: "Butter for civilians is so scarce now that it cannot be rationed at present."

If the scarcity is that acute it would seem a sensible move to immediately stop all retail butter sales for a few days, until a reserve could be accumulated sufficient to make an equitable distribution to consumers, rather than permitting the present hap-hazard method of distribution to continue.

Modern oleomargarines are so palatable and nutritious that they are already used by many families as butter substitutes, with harmless coloring material available to give the customary butter color if desired. Further extension of the use of a butter substitute, at least temporarily, would probably work no great hardship and might give opportunity for a start-off of butter rationing.

Astrologer Takes a Hand

AN ASTROLOGER says labor problems and food shortage will be the main topics of conversation in February. In March Hitler will find out that he is fighting for a lost cause, and the Japs will view an eclipse of the sun with apprehension. April shows victories on both fronts. May shows power, but also gas and drug attacks.

In June there will be more action and not all of it favorable. July and August will be critical and September even more so. In October there will be accidents, fires, storms and upheavals. November will have labor shortages, earthquakes, illness and epidemic. It will be a favorable month to exchange prisoners. December shows action in the southwest and will be a good month.

None of this sounds unreasonable and believers in the influence of stars will probably pin faith on such forecasts—although Hitler's astrologers do not seem to have been doing so well lately.

One nice thing about astrological forecasts is that the ones that miss are ignored and only those which come close to actual later happenings are again brought to public notice.

Some people may be surprised to learn that there is a considerable demand at news stands for magazines dealing with astrology, but one man who has been reading along this line for a number of years has come to the conclusion that "when it's shaken down and summed up, all it says is that two and two will be four under Uranus and Neptune next month, just as they were under Saturn and Jupiter last month. Those who are good will be happy, and those who are bad won't."

Jokes That Come and Go

JOKES go in groups. "Moron stories" are now sweeping the country. Once upon a time it was Scotch jokes, and before that Ford stories. The Ford stories were modern, but it is not so certain about the Scotch yarns. The English hundreds of years ago used to tell about the wise men of Gotham who, seeing the moon's reflection in a pond, tried to fish her out, and did other things equally foolish.

In this country the vaudeville artists used to raise laughs when in various big cities they mentioned the name of a nearby town which was supposed to be not quite so bright as its neighbors. In Boston the butt was Chelsea; in Philadelphia, Camden.

Now these old-time jokes are being revamped and revived. Perhaps, when they are analyzed, all "funny stories" are old.

Mussolini expresses determination to "see it through to the bitter end"—which at least indicates realization of what kind of an end it will be.

As nearly as can be judged by Eddie Flynn's statement on the subject, his courtyard was also paved with good intentions.

BUT FIRST CATCH THE RABBIT

Argentina Continues as 'Hold-Out'

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — That Chile's break in diplomatic relations with the Axis leaves Argentina at the extreme end of an exceedingly long Pan-American limb doubtless has been sufficiently advertised already.

President Rios

With the Chilenos' action, the Argentinos remained as the sole western hemispherical country still on conversational terms with the Axis powers, not to mention those who formally declared war with the latter.

Parenthetically, unless you want to insult 'em for their backwardness in lining up with the democracies, don't refer to the Argentinos, as so frequently is done in our midst, as "Argentinians." They're "Argentinos" in Spanish.

Essentially, why have the Argentinos been so balky and the Chilenos so belated?

Chile's answer is quite obvious. It's a republic consisting of almost nothing but a very narrow strip, several thousands of miles long, of unprotected coastline, a perfect invitation to Jap aviators to devastate.

U. S. Protection?

The Santiago government wanted promises of Yankee help against such raids and was slow in getting 'em. Possibly it's received 'em now "sotto voce," or maybe it's taking a chance merely.

There's no question, anyway, that from the first, rather recently elected President Juan Antonio Rios (meaning "Rivers") has been pro-U. S. and pro-United Nations generally. If he'd chosen, he could have broken Chileno-Axis relations immediately, by executive decree, instead of which he waited a few weeks for a senate vote, mandating him to do so. In all likelihood it was sound judgment. He furnished the senatorial inspiration and did his decreeing within 24 hours after it was voted on.

Chile, then, is solid. It's got a good many Japs within its borders, but not a sufficient proportion of 'em to be formidable locally.

The "Argentinian" complication is that Argentine production almost exactly parallels our own, making us competitors in world markets—for cattle, pigs and miscellaneous farm stuff.

We also have to remember that, for several generations, we maintained a decidedly bullying Yankee attitude toward Latin-America. We interfered in our neighbors' local affairs and made ourselves promiscuously unpopular. It continued on into Woodrow Wilson's and Herbert Hoover's administrations. Largely it's worn off under the Roosevelt'an Good Neighborly policy, but the "Argentinians" remain rather reluctant toward it.

19 Out of 20.

A good job has been done, it's true.

There are 20 of those republics; and 19 of 'em are pro-us at present. Still, we've got that remaining task of conversion.

Southern Brazil's represented as having a formidable German army available for emergency purposes.

It's an accurate story, within limitations.

The states of Sao Paulo (St. Paul) and Rio Grande do Sul (Big River of the South) are so German that you can't go ashore and get your simple wants known except in Germanic. The native Portuguese doesn't like it, though. At a clash, I don't think they'd last long. It would involve an internal war, but the Germans would lose it indisputably in short order.

The Spaniards and Portuguese are IT in Latin-America.

Next come the Italians.

Then the Germans.

Finally the Japs, in a few spots.

The French don't signify, except very locally, on an island or two.

It'll be interesting to watch how long Argentina can hang onto the end of its limb.

Guide In Cases of Mental Illness

—By DR. CLENDENING

PHYSICIANS are constantly obliged to describe and explain repetitiously to members of the family and to friends of a patient with a mental illness what can be expected from treatment, what is the best course to take and what the family should do to help the patient.

The Commonwealth Fund in New York has issued a little book titled "Mental Illness: A Guide For the Family" which should be very useful for all relatives and friends of a mental patient because the attitudes of relatives play a large part for the better or worse in the outcome or in the treatment of a patient with a mental breakdown.

One of the hardest things for the relatives to realize about one who is close to them, living in the same household, is that he may be actually off the track mentally. It is easy enough to understand that somebody in the next block is "peculiar" or that another one has "gone to pieces" or has "had a breakdown," but when it comes to the acknowledgement of mental illness in someone dear to you, your emotions quite naturally color your reason. This is one of the reasons why many of these people drift along until it is too late help them.

Forms of Mental Illness.

Mental illness takes on many different forms; its victims may be silent and sluggish in movement or, on the contrary, may be excited, talk all the time and leap from one idea to another. They may have a fixed idea, for instance, that somebody in the family is an enemy without any real reason whatsoever for such a belief.

At such a time the worst thing to do is to listen to friends or well-wishers who are ignorant of the technical features of modern psychiatry. They will soothe you down with assurances that the patient "will soon be himself again" or that he is "just a little upset by events."

The decision as to whether the patient should be hospitalized or not is discussed in detail as are such subjects as "Some Treatments For Mental Illness," "The Family and the Hospital," "Letters and Visits," and "When the Patient Comes Home."

The entire book is written in a sensible and matter-of-fact way and can be highly recommended to those who are puzzled and overwhelmed with an affliction of this kind.

An appropriate present for a girl is something she can wear; for a boy, anything he can eat.

The secretary says that Horatio Alger ain't dead, however, and never will be. Horatio is the fellow who used to start off on a shoestring and wind up at the top of the ladder. Interpreting the War News

Battering By American Planes Vital Factor In Rommel Defeat

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

BOMBAY—British War Secretary Sir James Grigg has conferred a grand decoration on gallant peoples in his statement that "the destruction of the Italian empire was overwhelmingly our show, ours and India's and Australia's and New Zealand's and South Africa's, and that of the inhabitants of British East Africa and British West Africa."

In assaying this tribute one's mind instinctively turns to the civilian population of Britain. No army has done more for the Allied cause than these brave folk whose stout spirit enabled England to hold out against the most frightful air assault the world has known and thus prevent a quick Hitlerian triumph. They've waited long for their reward in smashing victory and now it has come. That will mean much for morale in the trying days still ahead.

Through an association of ideas and perhaps partly because I'm a long way from America and a bit lonesome, my mind turns to my own people who also are doing their bit in this war, although far removed from actual battlefields. For them I want to write a little footnote to Sir James' broadcast.

* * *

JUST for home consumption and not to beat the drum, it won't do any harm to amplify his statement that "of course we had ungrudging help from American supplies and from American air forces in the latest stage, but nevertheless it has been overwhelmingly our show." Maybe Sir James himself added to this and it wasn't cabled out for publication. Anyway, I'm going to say my two cents' worth because I think you would be glad to know that the Yankee members of this Allied football team in Africa have carried the ball more than once.

I was with the British Eighth army in Libya after General Sir Bernard Montgomery's sensational rout of the Axis forces from El Alamein and before he began his great drive at El Agheila. I had full opportunity to check all the operations, including those of the American air forces.

Thus I can assure you that our air contingent, and especially our heavy bombers, played a major role in this victory.

I will go further and say the Eighth army's success certainly couldn't have been achieved in such a fast and overwhelming fashion without our air support.

At some of the most crucial moments of this campaign our heavy long distance bombers were the only ones which could reach General Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's rear bases and supply lines. Day after day Uncle Sam's big bombers blasted the Axis communications.

Who do you think it was that rendered Rommel's principal port of Tripoli impotent at a time when it was most essential to prevent him from receiving troops and supplies? Well, it was our heavy bombers.

* * *

THIS BATTLE has been largely one of communications and Montgomery has stripped his enemy with masterful skill. In order to do this he had to depend on the British and American air forces.

To say we took a major hand in the vital long distance bombing doesn't detract in the least from the splendid and indispensable work of the Royal Air Force in other categories or from the brilliance of Montgomery's strategy and tactics. He has written his name firmly across the page of Britain's famous soldiers.

The full significance of Montgomery's victory will become apparent only when the last of the Axis forces have been driven into the sea from Africa. Then we shall see the reopening of those all important Mediterranean shipping lanes to the Middle East and India and China.

Not only will this hasten Hitler's inglorious end, but it will create a mighty avenue of strength to be directed against the Japanese. There's no operation within the realm of feasibility which could have contributed more to the shortening of the war than the North African show.

African Climax Near, Axis Girds for Stand

—By LOUIS F. KEEMLE

THE NORTH AFRICAN campaign has moved one step closer to its climax as the remnants of Marshal Erwin Rommel's army stream across the Libyan border into Tunisia, closely pressed by the British Eighth army.

Most of Rommel's men are behind the Mareth line, which is about 50 miles inside Tunisia. It has been suggested that Rommel will attempt to stand on the line, a strong system of fortifications built by the French, which extends southward from the sea into the desert.

However, it is more likely that he will fight only a delaying rear guard action there while the main body of his army retreats northward toward the Tunis-Bizerte area in northeastern Tunisia to unite with the forces of Gen. Jurgen von Arnim for a final stand.

With three-fourths of his mechanized equipment destroyed, no adequate air support and the number of his troops reduced to probably not more than 50,000, it is doubtful if Rommel could hold the Mareth line.

The British could reduce this "Little Maginot line" by intensified artillery bombardment followed by direct assault, as they did to Rommel's positions at El Alamein, or they could outflank it.

The importance of the Allied aerial assault, pounding Rommel's forces incessantly from east and west, should not be overlooked. The aerial offensive also is working havoc with Axis supply lines and the ports which they must use.

Rommel would be in an extremely hot spot at the Mareth line. Even if he held there for a while, the delay would increase the possibility that the Allies would be able to break through to the Tunisian coast to the north of Mareth, at Gabes, Sfax or Sousse.

That would cut Rommel off from Arnim's forces and from any line of supply, making his position hopeless. He would be hemmed in by the British on the east, the Allied forces in southern Tunisia on the west, and more Allied forces to the north.

There are indications that the Allies are preparing for a coastal thrust to cut Rommel off. The Rome radio reports large scale American troop movements in southern Tunisia, which might mean an attempt to break through to the port of Gabes, only about 50 miles northwest of the Mareth line.

As the situation stacks up, the best strategy for the Axis seems to be to get Rommel's army into the Tunis-Bizerte corner as quickly as possible. There the combined Axis armies could put up a hard fight which would delay the Allies for an unpredictable time.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

(Last of Three Articles on the Pay-as-You-Go Income Tax Plan.)

WASHINGTON—The objections to the so-called Ruml "pay-as-you-go" income tax plan, now a proposed law in the Capper-Carlson bill, are legitimate.

Rep. Frank Carlson, Kansas Republican, in introducing the bill in the house, recognized them as such.

"I believe," he said, "every legislative proposal must stand on its own merits. So far as I know, no bill has ever been introduced that was perfect. It is only by constructive criticism that we adjust varying viewpoints on legislative proposals."

* * *

IN THE first place, putting the country on a pay-as-you-go income tax basis means either writing off 1942 income taxes completely or paying them this year or over a period of years to come. The Capper-Carlson bill proposes writing them off.

Opponents insist that this will mean a loss to the treasury of the approximately $7,600,000,000 which would have been collected on 1942 incomes. It is true that some day this sum will be lost. Mr. Carlson contends that it will be in appearance only.

The loss will arise this way: If the Capper-Carlson bill is passed as proposed and under the old system you owed $500 for 1942 taxes and you should die the day after the bill became a law, you would owe only on what you had earned in 1943. This would hold true for taxpayers who now owe 1942 taxes who die in 1944, '45, etc. In other words, the treasury loss will continue as this tax generation dies.

According to the experts, the loss resulting from switching to a pay-as-you-go basis will average $200,000,000 a year for 35 years. Proponents of the Capper-Carlson measure contend that this will be more than offset by additional revenue that will accrue from simplified methods of collection and avoidance of losses resulting from overburdening individuals with staggering tax bills in lean-income years.

* * *

ANOTHER objection is administrative difficulties. If a man has to contact his collector of internal revenue every time he changes his income status, there is going to be more work for collectors and their staffs.

A third criticism is the "windfall problem." How about those persons who "cleaned up" in 1942 but are back on the old income routine this year? This has been one of the chief arguments against eliminating the 1942 tax payments. Proponents of the bill say, however, that the whole plan should not be wrecked merely because some few persons may get away with something.

The solution rests with the voters -- with the Mr. and Mrs. Smiths that somehow manage to make themselves heard. Best guess now is that the Capper-Carlson bill, in some form, will reach a vote in the house and Senate. The result is up to you.

A Farmer's Diary

An Icy Morning

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ICE GLISTENED on the trees and shrubs as the dull gray light of morning came. Blades of grass "crankled" and compressed beneath my feet as I crunched slowly toward the barn. Shattered particles as white as snow were deep in my tracks.

The wind blew from the north and the icy armor of the maples by the gravel road split, splintered, tore and rang like tiny bells. The great tops roared, and chalklike checks formed constantly from deep glazed trunk to smallest twigs tossed against the sky.

The metal barn roof glistened as it did on the day a brand new coat of paint had been put on. A pair of unsuspecting pigeons alighted on the comb and slid down half the northern side before they took to flight. A bluejay screamed loudly on the wing and landed on an icy crusted rail only to reach the ground, confused.

I grinned at the jay, and some psychic influence from my boyhood seemed to say "Why don't you feed the chickens? They'll be hungry." I obeyed the impulse. Although the dozy birds were barely off their perch, they ran with confidence toward the light of the yard where I threw them corn. The foremost two that had gained the greatest speed slid on their necks and beaks and let out surprised squawks. The others, following humanlike, tried to stay their haste and sat down suddenly, fanning the corn in all directions with their tail feathers.

Satisfied, I attempted to reach the gravel road—an uphill business.

An old spotted hound had the same idea. I saw him come out of a thicket some distance off, leap confidently toward the middle of the highway and skitter sidewise, whimpering, into the ditch where he watched to see how I would make out.

My car was but fifty feet from the road, snugly set in the shed, but the drive sloped toward the open field. I had planned to go to town. With skill born of much practice on that particular ground, I backed and turned and got into the middle of the rounded road. Mine was the first and only car to pass that way. I kept as near the middle as I could—and reached the heavily traveled highway.

Here, on both sides of my 15-mile track, drivers more unfortunate than I were stranded in the ditch, some with wheels in air. Wrecking crews were out and patrolmen directed traffic. A screaming ambulance hurried by, then another.

I knew that "there, but for the grace of God, went I" but on I went, singing my weird lonely tenor as I slipped to this side and that or was forced to shift the wheel by the breeze. It was a lovely trip. Why, I wonder does hazard add zest to living?

NAZI REGIMENT YIELDS TO REDS AT STALINGRAD

Unit Surrenders as Soviets Crush in on 12,000 Trapped Germans.

been contained in a special communique which said that between Jan. 10 and yesterday 28,000 had been taken prisoner and more than 20,000 killed, leaving only the two pocketed groups, one north of Stalingrad, the other near the center of the city, to be disposed of.

Of almost equal importance was the fact that the Russians had now cleared three great railroad systems leading from Stalingrad —to Moscow in the north, to Likhaya on the Rostov-Moscow to the west, and to Salsk and Tikhoretsk to the southwest.

Thus the Salsk line was open to supply the Russian southern army now less than 40 miles from Tikhoretsk, junction point for the Caucasus railroad, and apparently near contact with the north Caucasus army driving up from the north on Kropotkin.

At last reports the Russians were only 14 miles from Kropotkin, which in turn is only 35 miles down the Caucasus railroad from Tikhoretsk.

The noon communique, reporting local actions during the night and mentioning some desperate enemy counter-attacks, at the same time gave a picture of continued unbroken Russian advances along the 450-mile southern offensive front of the Red army.

In one Voronezh sector, west of the Don, the Russians drove through several inhabited localities, capturing important spoils.

On the southwestern front guards troops stormed and captured an inhabited locality, took more than 300 prisoners and seized three airplanes, 4,000 aerial bombs, and other spoils, the noon communique reported.

On the southern front where they are driving for Tikhoretsk Russian infantry regiments took several inhabited places along with prisoners and spoils.

In the north Caucasus, the noon communique reported, the Russians took numerous inhabited places during the night.

The noon communique announced that in the area of Armavir, down the Caucasus railroad from Kropotkin, a Russian unit captured 200 field guns, 137 trench mortars, 120 machine guns, several thousand rifles, 229 tommy guns, 263 anti-tank rifles, 2,000 artillery shells, 8,000 aerial bombs, 100,000 rounds of ammunition and several ammunition dumps.

The special Stalingrad and the midnight communique said:

"Our troops on the Don front, continuing their offensive against the German Fascist troops surrounded in the Stalingrad area, after fierce fighting and having overcome numerous powerful enemy fortifications, finished in the main the liquidation of the surrounded groups.

"There remained only two small enemy forces, separated and isolated from each other, not yet liquidated, numbering together not more than 12,000 men. Of these one group is situated north of Stalingrad, the other nearer the central part of Stalingrad.

"Both these enemy groups are scattered and their liquidation is a matter of two or three days."

The special communique told how the Russians in one of the bloodiest and biggest annihilation operations in modern war had captured 60 strongly fortified populated places on the Stalingrad front between Jan. 10 and Jan. 26, along with nine railroad stations.

They had demolished 2,147 gun emplacements and block houses and 115 fortified observation points. They had silenced 737 artillery and mortar batteries and cleared 1,400 square kilometers (360 square miles) of territory.

A partial count alone showed the following spoils taken: 523 airplanes, 1,297 tanks, 2,978 field guns, 904 trench mortars, 4,870 machine guns, 45,000 rifles, 49,000 motor trucks, 4,660 motorcycles, 299 caterpillar trucks and tractors, 4,570 war material carts, 170 wireless transmitters, three armored trains, 42 railroad locomotives, 230 railroad freight cars, 160 war equipment dumps and much other war material.

They had destroyed 132 planes, 290 tanks, 315 guns, 950 machine guns, 1,970 motor trucks and 43 stores depots.

"Thus the plan of the supreme command of the Red army for the encirclement and liquidation of a large group of elite German Fascist troops has been basically materialized," the special communique said.

Allies Recapture Tunisia Positions

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—(INS)—Allied forces in the Ousseltia valley and in the mountains to the east have recaptured some positions lost in recent operations, an official announcement said today.

The new positions are being consolidated, a communique said.

Two enemy fighter-bombers attacking an Allied air field were destroyed, and two others shot down in a minor raid on the Algiers area.

Chase Rommel West Of Ez Zauia On Coast

CAIRO — (INS) — The British Eighth army today pursued the fleeing Afrika Korps west of the captured coastal town of Ez Zauia, the Middle East high command announced today.

The communique said Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's advance units were in contact with the Axis rear guard.

Air assaults were maintained against Axis columns but the activity was on a reduced scale.

Offensive sweeps were carried out against objectives on the island of Sicily. Principal among the targets there was the ferry terminus at Messina which was bombed.

Sponseller and five passengers on his bus were thrown from their seats by the impact, only one of them escaping injury. Driver of the second car was not injured.

Because she didn't want to miss school and remained in Shelby, the Wycoffs' 13-year-old daughter, Glenna Jean, escaped injury and possible death in the crash. She is at the home of Rev. J. C. Searle, pastor of the United Brethren church, in Shelby.

Bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Wycoff were taken to the Rhoades funeral home in Mt. Vernon pending completion of funeral arrangements. It was expected the bodies would be taken to Shelby today.

The couple had lived in Shelby about three years, moving there from Akron. They were members of the United Brethren church.

Wycoff's parents who live in Buffalo, O.; one sister, Mrs. Gordon Miller of Tennessee, and two brothers, Roy, of Akron, and Paul, of Texas, survive.

Surviving Mrs. Wycoff are her mother, Mrs. Sarah Marquis, of Alliance; two sisters, Mrs. Carl Sponseller, of Alliance, and Mrs. Burlin Myers, of Clinton, O., and two brothers, Walter Marquis, of Wadsworth, and Vance Marquis, of Alliance.

In Fredericktown yesterday, a mother accidentally backed her car over her six-year-old daughter after taking the child to school, seriously injuring the girl.

The child, Edith Beeman, suffered a fractured collar bone and severe lacerations and bruises. The mother, Mrs. Howard Beeman, had let the girl out at school and was turning around when her daughter's coat caught on the car, dragging her beneath it.

CLEAR MOTIVE

Police Certain Train Killer Planned to Attack Bride.

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—Identity of the phantom slayer in the "mystery of lower 13" still remained unknown today as police attempted to assemble jig saw clues that would solve the knife-killing of pretty Mrs. Martha James, 21-year-old navy wife.

A breakdown of assembled evidence by Los Angeles police and Oregon authorities revealed that the murderer who slashed the throat of Mrs. James last Friday night while a train sped through Oregon had planned his crime with precision.

The motive, police were certain, was attempted attack.

Other pieces of evidence showed that the killer was right-handed. He slashed downward with a weapon, presumably a pocket-knife, in four directions from ear to ear. He took into Mrs. James' berth a large towel to stifle her screams, police said.

Fire Chief Joseph Kirby reported that the fire started in the kitchen of the cafe and quickly spread up and to the rear. Damage to the cafe was estimated at $10,000 and to the theater at $275,000. The fire began at 4:18 a. m. and was brought under control shortly after 6 a. m.

NEW WARNING

Draft Boards Again Cite Rule To Give Notification.

Richland county selective service officials urged again today that all registrants report immediately in writing to their boards any change in address or status.

Office attaches are kept busy, they said, in answering needless telephone calls and queries occasioned by failure to comply with this order. Only written information is considered by the boards.

"If you change your address, your employment, your marital status or number of dependents, it is your business to report it in writing to your draft board," Richland county draft clerks chorused, adding that they had information that "teeth may be put in this order" by penalty for failure to make such reports. Changes in conditions of health must also be reported, they warned.

The selective service advisory board is the proper body to consult concerning doubt about status or questionnaire, board clerks announced, while the government appeal agent has to do with complaints concerning improper classifications.

CAN'T GET GAS

Village Refused Fuel to Run Fire Trucks.

HAMILTON —(U.P.)— The village of Seven Mile, near here, today could not get gasoline for two pieces of fire apparatus because it cannot show title to the pumper and truck which it has used for 20 years, officials revealed.

The rationing board rejected the village's application because it could not show certificate of title. Mayor Carl Spivey has asked state officials for certificates of title in order to relieve the situation. Some gasoline has been left from pre-rationing days.

faith in a final German victory.

As Germany finds itself in more straitened circumstances one Nazi radio commentator suggested that Hitler's shrinking military assets will be strengthened through new demands of Rumania and Hungary.

The Nazi-operated Oslo radio, according to Reuter's, apologized for the mounting Nazi reverses in Russia by pointing out the immense help being sent to the Soviets by Britain and America. Germany must increase its efforts to meet the situation, the announcer exhorted.

Newspaper reports to Stockholm related that in one of the gloomiest press conferences ever held in Berlin a military spokesman prepared his listeners to receive news of the annihilation of the Nazi Sixth army before Stalingrad. Those present, it was said, were asked to assure the German people that Hitler did not needlessly sacrifice his troops.

All Berlin commentators, both on the radio and in the press, are now hinting that the end of Hitler's Stalingrad forces is near and are urging the German people to be courageous in their adversity.

Tokyo joined in with Berlin in seeking to put a damper on the importance of the Allied conferences in North Africa.

"These two political jackanapes," the German radio said in referring to President Roosevelt and Premier Churchill, "have chosen to stage a fourth-rate Hollywood bigwig powwow on the romantic shores of Africa.

"The original tub-thumping of this international fiasco promised to entertain a delirious audience but in reality reduced itself to a vaudeville battle between the two chief clowns in the Allied battlefield.

"Stalin told the pair he has more important things to do than play political tiddley-winks with gadabout statesmen who compose Atlantic charters and communiques.

Both the German and Japanese broadcasts were directed to America and there was no indication that the Axis radios had told their own people of the North African meeting.

COURT HAS NEW NAME FOR THEM

People Who Kiss Are Now Kissor and Kissee.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— A couple of new terms bobbed up in the Ohio supreme court today as an appellant contended there was no evidence that "the kissor obtained the kiss without the consent of the kissee."

James Del Gregg, convicted in Cincinnati of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, appealed from his conviction on that ground, also contending that the judge improperly influenced the jury when he answered in the affirmative the following question by the jury:

"Would the act of kissing a juvenile without her consent be improper?"

His nine questions are:

"1. Do you think we are jeopardizing our overall war effort by continuing to draw manpower from our farms and industries in order to build up our armed forces?

"2. Do you favor a selective service (draft) moratorium?

"3. Do you favor legislation prohibiting strikes during the emergency?

"4. Do you favor giving the president the right to say where you work and your wage?

"5. Do you favor registration of all women?

"6. Should overtime be paid after 40 hours? After 48 hours?

"7. Do you favor a pay-as-you-go tax plan?

"8. Do you favor a federal sales tax?

"9. Should all reciprocal trade agréements be submitted to congress for approval?"

McGregor said that he intends to abide by the sentiment in his district as disclosed by the poll.

"I intend to continue sampling on other issues," he added. "I tried this on a smaller scale two years ago and the response was very worth while.

"I am making only one reservation—should we come to an extremely vital issue where I think my own deep-seated convictions should guide me instead of sentiment in my district, I shall not hesitate to follow my own conscience. Otherwise, I intend to vote the way my district askes."

The dessert course was served at the home of Mrs. Fred B. Hout, Andover road, where the buffet table was centered with an arrangement of snapdragons and daffodils and appointments in yellow and pink.

The afternoon was spent playing bridge at four tables, with Mrs. Richard Tappan and Mrs. Nicholas S. White, receiving high score awards. The hostesses presented the bride-elect with a gift prize.

Child Study Club Members Hear Talk By W. L. Miller

W. L. Miller superintendent of public schools, was the principal speaker last evening at the meeting of the Child Study club at the home of Mrs. Earl Gaar, 380 Shepard road. Mr. Miller spoke on "Stepping Stones of Peace" in connection with Germany and Italy.

Mrs. A. L. Glattke, program chairman, presided over the business meeting, at which 18 members and three guests were present, in the absence of Mrs. Dale Balph, the club's president. Mrs. Ivor Balyeat served as associate hostess. The three guests, Mrs. J. R. Harrington, Mrs. Gene Zedaker, and Mrs. Charles Spreng, were welcomed by Mrs. Glattke.

Contribution was made to the infantile paralysis fund. Mrs. C. F. Beddard, Mrs. Keith Miller and Mrs. T. F. Bands were appointed as a committee in charge of a Valentine party to be held for the pre-school age children of club members.

Mrs. Glattke introduced the guest speaker, who, in his talk gave "Stepping Stones of Peace," gave the stepping stones as education and religion. Mr. Miller pictured Germany as an individualistic nation. "But Hitler," he said, "has moved in and now controls the schools and has destroyed the church."

Influence of religion has been entirely taken away from the children of Germany, but they think Hitler is all right, as they have no alternative. Germany has always been a prosperous nation but not so with Italy, he said. Mr. Miller stated that this war will cause Italy to feel starvation very keenly. He went on to say that Italians enjoy more freedom of religion than Germany, but their education is very much neglected.

Less than one tenth of the children of Italy reach high school, and less than one-tenth of that number reach college. Tuition is required for high school, so since many families cannot afford this, many children remain out of school at the age of nine and are permitted to do so.

Our city of New York spends more yearly on the public school system than all of Italy. In closing, Mr. Miller said that the children of these fighting nations will have to be assured of freedom of education and freedom of religion, before we can be assured of lasting peace.

Refreshments were served from an attractively decorated table with Mrs. J. J. Kindel pouring. There will be a called meeting for members Thursday evening, Feb. 4, at 8.30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Balph, 89 Sherman place.

The next regular meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Kindel, 435 Davis road, Tuesday evening, Feb. 23. Mrs. C. F. Beddard will serve as associate hostess.

By MME. QUI VIVE

Family photograph albums and collections of snap shots offer a history of fashions in feminine faces. Women do change their faces. Some looked older at thirty than they do now at fifty.

Take the picture of a great-grandmother at the age of 18 when she was a bride. Her straight hair is parted in the middle, drawn in severe loops over her ears. She wears a plain little bonnet and her dress has no more fit to it than a flour sack. She carries an expression of serious responsibility, though she's little more than a child.

In later years she acquires a grim look as befitted the time when gaiety was not quite respectable. Everything that made one happy and light-hearted was wicked.

Now for grandma, her daughter. At the age of 18 she crimped her hair every day on a curling iron, wore wasp-waisted corsets, and street dresses that trailed on the sidewalk. A few years later she was in a straight front corset, bore a huge pompadour upholstered with factory hair and topped with a Merry Widow hat as big as a tire. She had bushy eyebrows. Paint had never touched her fair countenance.

Then came the period of waved locks covering half the cheeks. Foreheads were not in evidence.

Rouge, lipstick, tweezed and tortured eyebrows started up business at the end of World War I. The boys came back from France, scarcely recognized their best girls. Hair was wadded atop the head in scrolls, coils and buns and what was known as a "dip" curtained the forehead.

There followed the tight marcel wave that looked pretty much like corrugated paper or the scrubbing side of a washboard. The first permanents appeared, making the head look as if it were capped with a frizzy floor mop. About that time the bob startled the world. The bowl cut came first and was it ugly! We had the page boy much later, a big improvement. We all remember the shingle, the wind blown, the pineapple curl.

Now there is a frantic endeavor to up the hair and get back to where we were along about 1918.

Consider the feminine mouth. The ideal used to be the little rosebud pattern of the Gish girls. A famous lady of the screen, who happened to have a large mouth started to accentuate it, and all the duckies followed suit. Some had square mouths, or almost square. The proper make-up caper at the present time is to streamline the lips.

Shaving off the eyebrows and using a crayon, or just going bald-faced, was one of the silliest of all beauty whimsies.

Fads are quieting down, as befits the period. The fashion now is to be natural looking.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Stage an accident to Mary?" I repeated in astonishment, and my father laughed indulgently.

"Don't look so horrified!" he said. "It won't be a real accident, and you won't have to do it without Mary's knowledge. She will be aiding and abetting you every step of the way.

"Lean back in your chair and relax," he went on, "while I explain what I mean."

I obeyed him, and for a few seconds he did not speak.

"In the first place," he resumed, "I need to keep Redfield in his position until this thing has been cleared up. I want him under my eyes, and I do not want him disturbed by worries over his job.

"You see, while Milner and the rest of them value their positions only because they give opportunities for espionage, Redfield puts his position as a Veritzen leading man above anything else. If he should lose it he would go berserk and would be useless not only to the traitors he is aiding, but, what is infinitely more important, he would be useless to me. Mary, on the other hand, is no longer important to me as an aid in getting a line on Redfield."

I suppose my face reflected my astonishment, for he suddenly smiled.

"I know your're thinking," he said, "that I already have asked Mary to go out with Redfield, well-chaperoned of course, a few more times, but that was only so that his suspicions shall not be aroused, and for no other reason; not to try to get any information out of him. She finished that part of her task superbly last night, when she discovered the hiding place of that document and enable us to get it back, and to substitute another, to deceive the traitors who are using Steve as their messenger.

"But," he said slowly, "if Steve's suspicions can be lulled by Mary suddenly being unable either to go anywhere with him or to appear in her role, then my end will be attained and so will Philip Veritzen's, for then Mary will never have to appear with Redfield again. And when my plan comes to a climax, Redfield will be removed not only from his role, but from Mary's life as well. He will have no chance for annoying her from the place where he will spend the next few years.

"The best thing of all," he went on, "is that Philip Veritzen, who never rescinds a decision, will thus be able to carry his point."

He rose and put his hand on my shoulder.

"I must go over to see Veritzen as soon as that make-up man gets here," he said, "and while I am gone I want you to put your wits to work planning a plausible accident or illness for Mary. You are so ingenious I am sure you will be able to think up something very convincing."

"Convincing to whom?" I asked. "How many people are going to know that the accident or illness is not genuine?"

"Only those who really have to know," he answered. "You and I, of course, Philip Veritzen and Dr. Twitchell, who will be called to attend her, and who knows how to make things convincing. I don't see why anybody else should have to know, do you?"

I looked at him in astonishment. How in the world could we keep knowledge that any accident to Mary, or her illness, was staged instead of real, from her husband or from Olga and Olina?

But the sound of the knocker prevented me from answering my father's question.

"That must be the make-up man," he said. "You won't need to answer my question now, but try to have something ready for me when I get back."

Child Should Be Protected From Fright

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

The mother of the young child, with no help, is tempted to run a short errand after he has gone to sleep for his nap. Some young couples will even venture to go out for an evening, leaving the sleeping youngster all alone in the house.

Don't leave a child alone in the house until he is old enough to be comfortable and self-reliant while awake before you leave, knowing that you are going. When you leave a child over 12 or 14 with a younger child, be sure this older child is dependable. Work out with him a definite plan in case of emergency—what to do and where to telephone in case of fire or if a doctor is needed. Do likewise with any adult you leave in charge of the young child. Have such telephone numbers printed boldly and posted near the telephone.

A Mother's Letter.

"Dear Dr. Myers:—Thank you for your letter and your bulletin on 'Stuttering.' I am sure you will be glad to know that Billy's stuttering has now practically disappeared.

"Until Billy was 18 months old he was always put to bed at regular hours, left alone with lights out and door closed. Then it was necessary for us to move some distance and to spend a few nights in a tourist cabin. After Billy was put to bed as usual and was, as we thought, asleep, we went to the restaurant a few doors away for dinner.

"The second evening while we were gone, he awakened and apparently was terribly frightened when he found himself alone and we did not answer his cries. From then on he has screamed in fright when we put him to bed and attempted to leave him.

"For a time we stayed near and in every way tried to make him feel safe again. We were having some degree of success and I feel sure we might have overcome the difficulty, but for our temporary residences, each for only a few weeks, before we had a permanent one.

"As a last resort we remained with him until he went to sleep, with the inevitable result that we must now lie down in the same room with him until he goes to sleep both at bedtime and nap time."

Doctor's Answer.

Usually I advise parents to let the child so spoiled cry it out and learn to stay alone, but in this case, considering the earlier fears and uncertainties this child experienced, I advised that for some months, at least, they go on staying with him.

I did suggest that beginning during the nap time, the mother might gradually wean him away from her if she would make herself busy in another room, going in and out softly now and then as if getting some needed article, letting him feel sure all the while she was near; that, moreover, he should spend more time during the day with some child or person other than a parent.

In my letter to this mother who thoughtfully enclosed a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it, I enclosed a selected list of books and pamphlets which discuss the common problems nearly every parent must face.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q "Do you know any one who could instruct me to be more thrifty?" a mother writes.

A. Many banks have certain experts who are glad to show a mother or father how to make a family budget and spend the family income wisely. Some wives would be wise to sit down with the husband and plan a budget.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

ODD-LOOKING CONTRACTS

If you employ artificial conventions for opening the bidding, such as the Vanderbilt club or the forcing 2-Club bid, you must expect to get in an occasional contract which seems very peculiar. You may have only a singleton trump, or perhaps none at all while the dummy has a great string of them. In those cases, you must play as if you were a fly walking upside down on the ceiling, treating the dummy as the declarer's hand and your own as the dummy.

	♠ K Q J 10 8 ♥ 10 8 6 ♦ A 3 2 ♣ K 5
♠ A 9 6 4 ♥ A K J 5 ♦ 2 ♣ Q 10 9	N W E S	♠ 3 ♥ Q 4 ♦ K ♣ A Q J 10 9 6 4 3 2
	♠ 7 5 2 ♥ 9 7 3 ♦ J 8 7 6 5 4 ♣ 8

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♣	1 ♠	6 ♣

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

West would not dare monkey with that bid by his partner. He was using the version of the Vanderbilt system in which an opening bid of 1-Club was artificial betokening possession of at least three "top tricks"—either an aceking and an ace or else three aces. Knowing his partner was familiar with the system, he could be sure East was not counting on him for any clubs at all. So he passed and played the hand at a small slam with only a singleton of trumps in his own hand.

North led the spade K, as most any body would, and as a consequence West took all of the tricks. After winning with the A, he got rid of clubs and then threw off his losers in spades and diamonds on the dummy's hearts. Of course, if North leads the diamond A, only a small slam will be made.

Where there was natural bidding, East became the declarer at 6-Clubs, which was at every other table of the duplicate in which this deal arose. At all of those tables, South led a diamond, and the A held the declarer to small slam.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ 10 ♥ A 9 7 2 ♦ A 5 3 ♣ A 9 6 5 2
♠ K Q J 9 7 5 3 ♥ J 6 5 4 ♦ None ♣ Q 3	N W E S	♠ A 8 6 2 ♥ Q 10 8 3 ♦ 7 4 ♣ K 8 7

With sound purpose and diligence, important enterprises may be carried to success. Social, sentimental, and all round gratifications and pleasures may be able to participate in reaction to progress and initiative.

Chocolate Replaces Coffee

By BETSY NEWMAN

If your coffee ration won't fit your usual needs or you have to do without your morning coffee, there are other hot drinks to serve for breakfast, such as cocoa, chocolate, tea, hot milk, chocolate milk shake, egg nog made with warm milk. All but tea are more nourishing than coffee.

Today's Menu.

Breakfast.

Fruit Juice
Cereal With Top Milk
Creamed Eggs over Toast
Hot Beverage
Cocoa.

1 Tbsp. sugar
1 Tbsp. cocoa
½ cup cold water
2 cups milk
Few grains salt
¼ tsp. vanilla

Measure sugar and cocoa into a saucepan. A double boiler is good for making cocoa, as it relieves worry about burning, and the hot water in the lower part keeps the cocoa hot if it has to stand awhile. Mix together and add cold water. You may use less sugar than the tablespoonful if you like. Put in a teaspoonful and taste to see how much more you need. Heat slowly to boiling point and boil 3 minutes, no longer; add milk and heat but do not boil; add salt and vanilla, whisk vigorously with a whisk or a rotary beater, and serve piping hot. Serves 3.

Hot Chocolate.

Use above recipe but substitute 1 ounce bitter chocolate in place of cocoa. Set in warm place or over hot water to melt, stir in sugar and have water boiling. Boil three minutes, add milk and proceed as in making cocoa. Serves 3.

Chocolate Syrup (for Milk Shake)

2 or 3 oz bitter chocolate or
½ to ⅔ cup cocoa
¼ tsp. salt
½ to ⅔ cup sugar
1½ cup water.

Melt chocolate over hot water, or mix cocoa and sugar, add water, heat to boiling and boil 3 minutes; add salt. Turn into jar and seal when cold, and keep in refrigerator to be used as needed. Add 2 tablespoons of the syrup to 1 glass hot milk, add few drops of vanilla and serve. Serves 1.

Egg-Nog.

1 egg
2 tsp. sugar
Flavoring
Few grains salt
½ cup milk

Beat egg, add sugar and salt, beating them in; add warm milk, whisking it in, then add flavoring a little vanilla or a few gratings of nutmeg, and serve.

Child Study Club Members Hear Talk By W. L. Miller

W. L. Miller superintendent of public schools, was the principal speaker last evening at the meeting of the Child Study club at the home of Mrs. Earl Gaar, 380 Shepard road. Mr. Miller spoke on "Stepping Stones of Peace" in connection with Germany and Italy.

Mrs. A. L. Glattke, program chairman, presided over the business meeting, at which 18 members and three guests were present, in the absence of Mrs. Dale Balph, the club's president. Mrs. Ivor Balyeat served as associate hostess. The three guests, Mrs. J. R. Harrington, Mrs. Gene Zediker, and Mrs. Charles Spreng, were welcomed by Mrs. Glattke.

Contribution was made to the infantile paralysis fund. Mrs. C. F. Beddard, Mrs. Keith Miller and Mrs. T. F. Bands were appointed as a committee in charge of a Valentine party to be held for the pre-school age children of club members.

Mrs. Glattke introduced the guest speaker, who, in his talk gave "Stepping Stones of Peace," gave the stepping stones as education and religion. Mr. Miller pictured Germany as an individualistic nation. "But Hitler," he said, "has moved in and now controls the schools and has destroyed the church."

Influence of religion has been entirely taken away from the children of Germany, but they think Hitler is all right, as they have no alternative. Germany has always been a prosperous nation but not so with Italy, he said. Mr. Miller stated that this war will cause Italy to feel starvation very keenly. He went on to say that Italians enjoy more freedom of religion than Germany, but their education is very much neglected.

Less than one tenth of the children of Italy reach high school, and less than one-tenth of that number reach college. Tuition is required for high school, so since many families cannot afford this, many children remain out of school at the age of nine and are permitted to do so.

Our city of New York spends more yearly on the public school system than all of Italy. In closing, Mr. Miller said that the children of these fighting nations will have to be assured of freedom of education and freedom of religion, before we can be assured of lasting peace.

Refreshments were served from an attractively decorated table with Mrs. J. J. Kindel pouring. There will be a called meeting for members Thursday evening, Feb. 4, at 8:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Balph, 89 Sherman place.

The next regular meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Kindel, 435 Davis road, Tuesday evening, Feb. 23. Mrs. C. F. Beddard will serve as associate hostess.
